Snyder takes pulse on school issues

by Nathaniel Webster

Snyder has an acute ear for music. He plays the guitar, the trombone and a sizzling saxophone; he sings with a local band during leisure hours and is a member of the local music-critic circle. So it is no wonder that he is interested in the principal's就业岗位 of tuning pianos and instructing students in the fundamentals of the instrument; he has been in the profession for 40 years.

Snyder has been known to use his talent to develop his musical skills. "I've given it a lot of thought," he says, "and I've decided I don't want to do piano tuning for a living."

That Used To Be A Tune

Snyder was a regular on the radio show "That Used To Be A Tune," which featured classical music and dance music. He was recognized for his ability to discern the subtle nuances of music, which he attributed to his early training in the music department.

The School of the Arts

Snyder is known for his dedication to the arts and music education. He is a member of the local musicians' union and has been a member of the local music department for 40 years. He is also a member of the School of the Arts and has been known to give lectures on the history of music.

Nothing will change. I don't think the government really can com-­ compact cars. As you are aware, part of (Metro's) mission is to change public perception of electric transportation. It is no longer a choice; it is a must.

The relocation of the tracts to downtown will create strong public transportation links and increase the use of electric and hybrid vehicles. It will also help to reduce congestion and air pollution in the city.

In conclusion, I urge you to seriously consider the proposal and support the efforts of Metro to make electric transportation a viable option for all residents of the city.

Sincerely,

Bob Dunnett

TUNING A PIANO will take Jerry anywhere from two to four hours, depending upon the condition of the instrument. After he completes the work on the strings, he checks the piano for buzzing, broken pieces and worn-out felts. He usually charges between $30 and $50 for a tuning and servicing job.

Overcoming darkness is Jerry Ryne's key

Jerry Ryne is a 47-year-old blind piano tuner who was born blind..ejbady can watch as the sight of his eyes. Blind since birth, he learned the art as a child, but the words don't move as quickly as his nimble fingers. He is quick and efficient, and he can carry much meaning through his movements, not his words.

Jerry Ryne uses his sense of touch to find his way around the piano, but he also uses his sense of hearing to tune it. He listens for the perfect pitch, and he can adjust the piano to suit the needs of the listener.

The tools of the trade include everything from tweezers to hammers, and Jerry knows exactly where each tool is despite his blindness. If strings need replacing, he can determine their size by a scale and match them with new ones.

Jerry Ryne's wife, Terri, who drives him to some of his jobs and keeps the books for the business, said that if the next four years are as good as the last, she'll be perfectly happy.

Drug abuse seminars scheduled in October

Concerned about the drug abuse problem in the Federal Way area, the Federal Way Organizations for Youth (FWOY) has been holding seminars for some time, and had decided to bring that effort back to the community.

In addition to ongoing seminars, a new effort will be held on three consecutive Wednesday evenings, Aug. 26 and 27, from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The sessions will involve presentations by experts and former drug users, followed by a Q&A session and a film. At the conclusion of each, participants will be asked to complete an anonymous survey. A similar event was held earlier this year.

A number of community leaders and organizations have already been added to the list of those who have joined forces in this effort. Arrangements are being made for an auxiliary to be formed later in the year.

Four citizens appointed to hospital board

Four new members have been added to the Highline Community Hospital Board of Governors. Nominated to the board is Howard Bell, Seattle, the executive vice president of Seattle Community Savings and Loan Association. The second new member, Patricia McGeary, Kent, is a Kent Highline Community Health Auxiliary and a volunteer at the hospital. Mrs. Bryan, a Des Moines resident, is a volunteer at both the hospital and the emergency room.

The board is now composed of: Patricia McGeary, Kent; Howard Bell, Seattle; Patricia Bryan, Des Moines, and Charles Bryan, Kent.

Fourteen three- and four-year-olds, all of them obviously drunk, attacked a 12-year-old girl at the playground of Woodland Elementary School Thursday at about 9:30 p.m. King County Police reported Friday.

According to reports, the trio approached the girl as she was playing at a tennis court, asking for a frisbee and soliciting for a friend and offered her a ride. She complied, an incident report said, and two of the boys walked away. But a third ordered her to get into their car, a black and red convertible, and when she refused, knocked her down.

The girl managed to escape, running to a nearby residence, police said.

VANDALS HIT a Pacific Highway South automobile driver just after midnight Thursday, inflicting about $1,000 in damage on a row of parked automobiles.

Police said the vandals hurled a variety of rocks and bottles at the trunk of the car, damaging the finish on a number of other cars. A nearby resident told police that he had a number of torn tires in the area.

Vandals also shot a hole in the window of a security guard's vehicle as he was making the rounds of the condominium area.

A third vandalism case occurred at South 39th Street parking lot, resulting in about $50 damage to a parked automobile.

Brown joins DM staff

by Cathy Stone

To some, he's Mr. Brown, to others, he's Charles Brown, but to Sylvia Barnes, vice principal, he is Port candidate Republican or Demo?

Some Republican leaders are unhappy, saying Sage told them he was a Democrat. "It sure surprises me," said Henry Simonson of Bag.

In the non-partisan Port race, he prefers not to know which party the candidates run. "I feel everything is up for grabs," he said.

"I hear this is a very nice school with very nice students, parents and staff. I'm pleased to be assigned to this," said Charles Brown.

New pastors join Des Moines church

Rev. Jim Finkbeiner of the Federal Way United Methodist Church, at 2604 S.W. 303rd Place, said that a new intern, Kathy Wilson, will be joining his staff beginning Aug. 6.

Wilson is from South Pittsburg, Tenn., where she majored in music. After four years of high school, she attended Emory University at Atlanta. In the fall of 1978, she entered the United Theological Seminary in Denver, Colo. Some of her activities include working with the youth and Sunday school of the church. In Denver, she worked with the Denver Public Schools. In Des Moines, she will work with the Des Moines public schools.

The Des Moines church is her first pastorate. While in Atlanta, she had her clinical pastoral education internship at St. Luke's Episcopal Church. While in Denver, she worked with transexuals, aiding them in finding jobs, housing, food and medical care if necessary.

A Coast Guard spokesman said a small fee will be charged for books. Certification of completion will be awarded at the end of the class.

Boaters hit books

Plattfield 11 of the Coast Guard will be offering classes on powerboat operation to boaters beginning Sept. 6 in Des Moines.

The classes are scheduled for 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in 9:30 p.m. in.

After her internship, Wilson will return to the fall seminar on fruit and vegetable storage.

Cooperative Extension will offer a free seminar on fruit and vegetable storage from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday at the Pierce County Annex, 620 S.W. 35th St.

SEATTLE-BELLEVUE-FEDERAL WAY-FEDERAL HILL: CALL COLLECT

It was at this church that Wilson was also before coming to Des Moines, he served as superintendent of the Seattle District for six years. As superintendent, he served at the United Methodist Church in King County.

"I'm no stranger to the Des Moines parish," he said. "Because I was superintendent of the district in which this congregation is, a very interesting parish," he said, describing the church as a rural church center in Eastern Washington and very far from the city.

He also spent about a year working with low income black children within a church community. Describing it as basically a fellowship group, she organized some sports teams and gave programs to educate the children in the areas of sexuality and drugs. She also worked with children on developing reading skills.

Some of her major responsibilities at the church will be youth, social concerns and missions. At this point she is getting acquainted, she said, but would later like to develop programs to combine this with the "reading work." She is very interested in quite reading skills in children.

The Chinese have an ancient saying, "One picture is worth thousand words." Looking at my newly arrived legal document from the State Department, I am forced to conclude that these thousands of words are all of the type to be read under your breath and never out loud in public. The picture on the billboard of the past office have more appeal than the one on my license. It needs only the addition of a plate of numbers at the bottom of the photo to indicate that my address in McNeil, and not Mercer Island.

My government-issued passport means I should be able to engineer a camera that would explore a reasonable facsimile of the poor corner citizens who are forced to face a lens every other year. James Garner probably would not be willing to take time off from his TV camera commercial, (where he has been teaching young-old children to take beautiful pictures) and give the licensing department the benefit of his expertise. "May I see your driver's license?" asks the clerk as I hand her a personal check. "Just a minute," she says, and rings for the manager. He does the same double take and then says, "Perhaps if you could leave your watch for col-lateral until this can be verified..." It goes on like that all the time. It is most embarrassing.

Walter describes picture as an "image or likeness of a person produced on a flat surface." The photo on my license isn't an im-age of me nor is it a likeness. It is, however, on a flat surface.

"If I was a blonde I think my eyes are blue," I tell him. "But if there are four hands here it doesn't matter." The manager finally said, "Just sign on your line, you know," and I give him the appearance of a blonde. (the color of my eyes is not noticeable since my corneal lenses reflect the light and give me the appearance of a blue eye."

Rape Relief counselors have been talking for a year and a similar project had never been done before. It was found that parents were reluctant to discuss the problems with their children because perhaps the parents themselves didn't know how to broach the subject. It was assumed that their child would be frightened and wouldn't know who to trust or simply didn't know how to put it into words the child could understand.

In the spring of 1979, Caren Flerchinger and her colleague Mary Ellen Stove, Pat Adams, and Tamela C. Devries of 22320 - 16th Pl SW, Federal Way, WA, have compiled and published a pamphlet which should help parents understand the problem of dealing with child molesting. The pamphlet was given to several groups involved in the area. They will also present it to the kids, "We're trying to reinforce a concept that a child's body belongs to her and that they have the responsibility in the community, to protect themselves. It should be the parents' job to talk to those parents who have experienced with parents and their children."

The pamphlet is distributed through community education meetings and to professionals in the area. It will also be available on request, free of charge. Each pamphlet will include an education sheet that can be mailed to the parents. The pamphlet will be updated and changed as it becomes necessary.

Enhanced by the project, coordinators say this is an effective way to teach parents about child molesting. It will help the parents understand what to do when their children come to them saying they are being molested.

The third chapter discusses "No That's Your Fault" and the fourth chapter encourages the child to tell somebody about it if they feel they are being bullied.

The project entails acquisition of approximately 2.3 acres of land in the eastern portion of the city, adjacent to Fife High School and near the city’s commercial center.

Comedy in town

A melodrama, "The Voice of the Mountains," will be performed today at the Empty Space Theater at 8 p.m. The production is one of a series of performances of the play, to be performed at the courthouse on the main stage, and in Olympia.

The workshop is designed for both volunteer and paid participation, per- forming groups, and governmental agencies.

The project is sponsored by the Burien Library and the King County Library System, with the city of Burien.

Refund 18, the bond issue passes by a margin of 60-50.

The play, to be performed at the courthouse on the main stage, and in Olympia, is made possible through a grant from the King County Arts Commission.

Toddler wanted

A child, between the ages of 2 and 3, will be needed to attend each week. The program is for children 2 to 3 years old.

Jeffrey H. Brewer, son of Harold and Mary Ann Brewer, resides in Federal Way. His phone number is 243-3490.

The workshop will be held at the Burien Library on September 4, with a class to begin on Tuesday, September 17. The session at the library will be held at the Federal Way Senior High School on the south side of the lake, at 5:30 p.m. in Steel Lake Park.

Be sure to attend each week.

County may suffer under voter scrutiny...Reams

Councilman Pat Thorpe considered the following ballot issue approved last year by the county council as the "poster child" to highlight the need for a "longer look" at how the county is governed.

"It's one of the reasons the Council has set up a committee to study the county form of government," Thorpe said.

"The county has been in existence for 100 years, and it's time to "stop the clock and see how things are working,"" the councilman, sponsor of a resolution to ask for a "County of King," said.

"The study will encompass all aspects of the county - how it's run, what it does, who pays for what, and who benefits from it."

The study will also include a review of the county's financial statements and a comparison of the county's budget with those of other counties.

"The study will take at least a year, and we hope to have a report by the end of 1979," Thorpe said.

"We want to make sure the county is doing the best job possible, and that's why we're doing this," he added.

Seminar to tell how Bible ads reduce

Mrs. Carol Marriott, of Bothell, Washington, an expert in Bible ads, will present "How to Lose Weight Following the Principles of the Bible," on Saturday, Sept. 7, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Federal Way Seventh-day Adventist Church, 2318 S. 360th

"The seminar will cover the principles of fasting, prayer, and the importance of diet control," Marriott said.

"We'll also discuss the benefits of sharing Bible ads with others," she added.

Building lot size proposals unveiled

A proposal to reduce the minimum building lot size in King County from 6,200 to 3,000 square feet could create "instant slums" according to King County Executive John Spellman.

"The executive outlined several proposed changes in the county's zoning code, resulting from recommendations of a citizen taskforce." Spellman said the reduced lot size was needed to "facilitate mobile homes on small lots." People have been trying for years to upgrade" what they originally bought, Spellman said.

"Let's face it," Barden said, "it is a "poor physical blight.""

"We don't need more of that," Spellman said.

"The county should be merging with the city," Spellman said.

"It's a long time coming," Spellman said.

Colchicum, otherwise known as crocus, is a root bulb plant. In the fall, the leaves bloom and usually die back. Some cultivars can be left in the ground for the following year, but this is not recommended. The blooms usually appear in late summer, with the flower head and stem remaining above the soil. Some cultivars have a blooming time of up to three days.

Colchicum is low maintenance, with only a few exceptions. It prefers a sunny, well-drained spot, and once established, it will reproduce itself. The plant can be propagated by division, but this should be done in the late summer. The flowers are white or pink, and the leaves are dark green. The flowers are usually followed by a seed pod, which can be harvested for later use.

Colchicum is sometimes used as a ground cover in the garden, and it can be used in containers. It is easy to grow, and it will thrive in a variety of soils. The plant is hardy, and it can be grown in USDA Zones 5-9.

Safe jog route planned

Federal Way jogging path in the works

By Harry Brooks

Federal Way area joggers may have something to look forward to after an interest in the near future.

Federal Way city staff members are planning a two-mile course which would be constructed within the grounds of the school and neighboring Federal Way Memorial Stadium.

"Running has become so popular that it seems natural to have a place for jogging that the community can utilize," noted Federal Way Assistant Principal Bob Penny, one of the course planners.

Federal Way's high track and cross-country coach Bill Harris explained that the layout was not old school-oriented activities.

"We need a new course for our track team to prepare for the distant-running portion of the season," he said.

"It's also needed for our popular course at Lake Park (where Federal Way's popular activities are located). It's also needed for our popular course at Lake Park (where Federal Way's popular activities are located). It's also needed for our popular course at Lake Park (where Federal Way's popular activities are located)."

Although the course was designed for the near future, it may also be used for the near future. Harris said.

"The course they formulated in the resolution council last month took into consideration the joggers. The total total will be completed in late July."

The course was set up so that the jogging - cross-country trail is in permanent existence. A running route was added to accommodate the joggers. The joggers may use the route whenever they wish. The joggers may use the route whenever they wish.

Washington's first offshore fishing pier is a remarkable success, according to biologist Ray Buckley from the Washington Department of Fisheries.

Since the Department of Fisheries opened the pier in March of this year, nearly 95,000 anglers and 31,669 angling licenses have visited the pier and caught more than 30,000 fish from the pier. Buckley said, "It even had that many people use the pier, we would be pleased." The pier is located south of Edmonds-Kingston Ferry dock. It provides over 1,000 fishing and hiking opportunities in children, senior citizens and the handicapped.

Two years ago, the Department built an offshore fishing pier to attract more bottom fish to the area. As the fish population grew, the number of fish caught from the pier increased from the 1st few weeks. Buckley estimated that in June, anglers caught from the pier averaged less than one fish per day. But last month, that average increased to nearly two fish per day.

"That's about equal to the load-fishing catch average for bottom fish in the same area," Buckley said.

Even though the Department built the pier for marine fish fishing, three chinook salmon weighing over 20 pounds have been caught from the pier in the last few weeks. Buckley said.

Arts center advocates investing in area's future

by Barbara Butts

Twenty-five dollars seems a small price to pay for a bit of poetry.

But that is exactly what was purchased by the approximately 150 Federal Way festival supporters who gathered at ElChato Village Thursday evening, said Pam Ross, secretary of the Federal Way BALLETA Opera Association.

Ross was only one of a series of speakers at the $25-per-person fundraiser, but she eloquently captured the spirit of future glory that hung over the crowd.

For many of them, at least, the dream of the Little Opera Company, performed in Seattle by a team of Beaumont Players and Soprano Shirley Hamilton in a semi-open studio with a view of the Pacific, seemed destined to become a center of political and cultural importance.

"Let's be more than a regional center of commerce," she said. "Let's be more than a theater of opportunity. We want to be a theater of destiny."

Quality that's the best.
The large foyer serves double duty as an inviting entrance to the rest of the home and a music alcove where the Sanchez children practice piano lessons.

The curved driveway which leads to the garage is surrounded by tall laurel hedges and abounds with trees and shrubs which have been carefully selected to let in more light. The yard still retains the original one. Large leaded glass windows on two sides provide plenty of light.

As you step through the heavy front door you enter a large foyer. While foyers generally tend to be formal, this one is friendly and invites you to come in and meet the family who lives here. A large upright piano sits against one wall, surrounded by family photographs. A Mexican doll with real hair, handmade by Sanchez' mother, rests on a dresser's bench across from the piano.

A door here opens directly onto the family room. Along one wall is curved at the top to fit the original fireplace, surrounded by tall laurel hedges and large leaded glass windows which overlook the back yard. One nice touch is the chandelier over the dining table which is additionally set off by a group of antiques. For the red, white and blue color scheme, the Sanchez children along with other relatives decorated the walls. To the right is 13-year-old Tony Sanchez' bedroom. Wallpaper sporting antique prints and a red border sets the tone for the red, white and blue color scheme. A window-seat with an arched door here leads in to the side yard.

Another door opens off the kitchen into the hallway. At the opposite end of the living room, triple arches separate the living room from the library. This was once a small room, but the Sanchezes knocked out a dividing wall and created a large alcove. They then covered the alcove with a cushioned bench across from the piano.

At the center of the hallway and directly opposite the stairway is the large cheerful master bedroom. Again, a window-seat, walk-in closet serves as a dressing room as well as an office area. A vent fan is concealed behind the arch, and a spice rack which has been built directly into the wall puts Mrs. Sanchez' favorite spices conveniently at hand. Deep cupboards provide storage space for all of the Sanchez' clothes. Two windows on one side provide plenty of light. A door here opens directly onto the family kitchen.

The kitchen required the most extensive remodeling and updating, but the results are a unique blend of old and new that leave an impression that the room has always looked this way. An old library table fitted with casters is a favorite of 13-year-old Tony Sanchez. To the right is another door which leads upstairs to the sleeping quarters. Directly opposite her room is the bathroom which is handsomely paneled and a roll-about work table. An old library table fitted with casters is a favorite of 13-year-old Tony Sanchez. To the right is another door which leads upstairs to the sleeping quarters. Directly opposite her room is the bathroom which is handsomely paneled and a roll-about work table. A shelf underneath holds a canister set and a spice rack which has been built directly into the wall puts Mrs. Sanchez' favorite spices conveniently at hand. The court held that the special use zone on the site is single family zoning, that the rezoned area was the purchase of open space not be diverted to other uses. Mrs. Conradi, a Westside resident, cites a State Supreme Court decision in favor of Boeing, which permits flights permitted for the nine development. The Westside Historical Society holds an appeal in Remission in favor of the developer, that the rezoned area was the purchase of a buffer between the airport and the intended neighborhood or the
