

THIS TANKER TRUCK, carrying 97 percent pure sulfuric acid, overturned on Pacific Highway South at Kent-Des Moines Road Monday. The intersection was blocked to traffic while the acid was pumped from the truck. There were no injuries. It was the third such accident involving Widing Transportation trucks in the past two months.

Lawsuit may put brakes on truck firm's defects

by Nathalie Weber

Widing Transportation, one of the West Coast's largest carriers of hazardous cargo, currently is facing a $24,000 fine from the federal government for operation of defective trucks.

Approximately 50 of that company's trucks operate out of Widing's Midway office, and a check of the Midway-based trucks by the State Utilities and Transportation Commission last week revealed that the equipment is in "poor" condition.

Dee Rose, special investigator for the commission, said that seven of the 21 trucks checked in Midway were put out of service for defective equipment. The defects range from cracked frames to inadequate safety chains, Rose said.

Although the safety check had been planned for several weeks, it proved to be timely last Tuesday after a Widing truck carrying corrosive sulfuric acid overturned the night before on the intersection of Pacific Highway South and Kent-Des Moines Road.

INVESTIGATIONS OF that accident indicate that it was caused by failure by the driver to negotiate the turn. It also has been determined that the truck was traveling at excessive speeds when it toppled, the UTC reports.

Another Widing accident less than two months ago also was caused by driver error and resulted in the dumping of anhydrous ammonia into Hood Canal. Widing may also be faced with a lawsuit from the State Department of Ecology as the introduction of the ammonia into the canal waters killed numerous shellfish. DOE currently is studying the harm caused by that Aug. 8 accident.

The third accident involving Widing within the past two months was caused by defective equipment. The accident occurred when welding that held the trailer together broke. That truck also was carrying sulfuric acid.

Although those recent accidents spurred UTC to make last week's Midway check, the $24,000 lawsuit filed against the Portland-based firm by the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety last month was a result of violations that reportedly occurred in August 1978.

THE BUREAU, apprehensive to talk about the case because of possible jeopardizing of future court proceedings, said Widing is facing at least six charges of violation of the hazardous material regulation.

Glen Widing, president of Widing Transportation, said that company will deny all but one of those charges, which if accepted by the court would drop the fine to $4,000. "The grounds for the other five charges are wrong," Widing contended. He said a letter of the company's intention already has been sent to the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety in Washington, D.C.

As for the findings of defective equipment in Midway, Widing said the conditions were "over-exaggerated."

"Most of them were quite minor and fixed within three to 20 minutes," he said. "And just because the commission says the brakes need adjusting doesn't mean they necessarily do. We don't agree with some of the safety violations."

But Rose of UTC doesn't agree with that. "The condition of those trucks is not typical of most carrier companies. They're not in good condition and they have to be repaired."

Rose said the commission has the ultimate authority to cancel Widing's operating license if it refuses to bring equipment up to code.

Washington State Association of Fire Chiefs, said one problem that association recognizes is that no one really is aware of what is being hauled on state highways. An association committee currently is studying the problem to determine what additional training is needed, he said.

Bob Arnold, fire marshal for District 26 in Des Moines, said that district is lacking in some equipment, including extinguishing devices, but he pointed out that FD 26 does not cover any of I-5, the main thoroughfare carrying the cargo.

"But there's always room for more equipment, if the money's available," Arnold said.

Is area prepared for truck hazard?

As transporting of hazardous materials on state highways becomes more common, area fire departments report that they are prepared to handle most emergencies involving those materials, but that they could still use more equipment and training.

Bud Thorson, Federal Way Fire Department chief, said that although that district's firefighters are trained in hazardous materials, each emergency is so varied that it is difficult to anticipate all instances. "It depends upon the cargo, where the accident is, which direction the wind is blowing," he said.

Cityhood: bureaucratic pathway probably clear

by Loren Bliss

Federal Way City Committee spokesmen and a King County Boundary Review Board official agreed Friday that the way is now probably clear for the board to begin going over the community's incorporation proposal.

But the city committee, said Brice Martin, the review board's executive secretary, still has to come up with a $25 filing fee before the process can get under way.

"The fee," he said, "is required by law. Once we get the check, the board will probably declare its intent to take jurisdiction, and then we can proceed."

Could the review board decide not to take jurisdiction?

"Technically it could," said Martin. "But in a matter of this importance, there's no question that the board will take jurisdiction."

Presumably what would happen next is that the board would announce the necessity for an environmental impact statement and start taking the steps leading to its completion.

ONE OF THESE, said Martin, will be asking the King County Council to approve the necessary funds.

And at some point further down the road, the review board will begin holding public hearings on the measure.

Meanwhile, Harry Keinath and Bob Stead, the city committee's co-chairmen, were expressing their hopes that all the required technicalities have been properly attended to.

"I anticipated that the county would be more helpful than it's been," said Stead. "But there hasn't been an incorporation in the state of Washington for about 20 years — so all of us, the county officials included, are breaking new ground."

As a consequence, he said, there's no policy book or set of guidelines to help incorporation advocates comply with all the requirements.

"For example," said Stead, "our petitions had been certified (by the county) for nearly three weeks before the county told us we had to file a letter of intent with the boundary review board."

STEAD, A lawyer, said that the requirement isn't clearly spelled out anywhere in the law.

"The county claims that we're supposed to know the law and the process," he said, "but at the same time, when the requirements are so unclear, what can we do?"

Stead said that his interpretation of the statutory demands was that the incorporation petition, once certified, would be automatically passed onto the boundary review board.

"But the county prosecutor ruled otherwise," he said.

Keinath and Stead both feel that "no one in particular" is to blame.

"I think nobody has a clearcut notion of his own legal responsibilities in this thing," Keinath said. "It's a very complex situation and we're all breaking a lot of new ground."

However, Keinath is now "confident that all the requirements have really been met," and believes that further delays will probably be avoided.

More bus routes planned

by Darlene Himmelspach

More than half the new bus hours proposed for Metro by May of next year are tentatively slated for the Federal Way-Auburn area with more hours expected to be added in September.

In all, Metro is proposing the addition of about 213,000 hours of bus service countywide by September, 1980. The service improvements are partially in response to the directive two months ago from Metro Council that the staff explore possible route additions to increase the annual bus hours by 100,000 hours.

However, Don Munro of Metro's transit division said Thursday most of the new hours and route changes resulted from staff work based on public meetings. That staff work started last January, Munro said. He said the county request did not reach Metro until August and "we could not have included those 100,000 hours if we had not begun in January." He said it takes about a year to implement such changes after they are suggested.

The new hours are expected to cost about $3 million but the source of that funding has not been identified, according to Munro. "The world should know that revenue is down and our costs are up," Munro said. He blamed the decrease in revenue on a reduction in sales tax revenue a result, he said, of a drop in consumer spending. "That could change at any time," Munro said hopefully.

Approximately 45,000 hours will be added to Federal Way and Auburn routes, contingent upon available money, by May. New local service will be added to Twin Lakes on routes 175 and 176. Other new service connects Federal Way to Auburn, serves the Camelot mobile home area and links Federal Way with the Duwamish Industrial area.

In addition to those route changes, another 5,300 hours of annual bus service is earmarked for Route 178, a new link between Kent and Des Moines. That is set for service by February, money prevailing, Munro indicated. Metro Council approved that change at its last meeting.

Another 45,100 annual hours is included in the 213,000 total to serve park and ride lots, predominantly in the northeast part of the county. Those, said Munro, "have been in the plan forever so we intend to do them." When that money is spent, the 50,000 hours, including the Federal Way improvements, will be funded, he said.

The three possible funding sources are motor vehicle excise tax, sales tax or a fare increase. Munro said there is no plan now to request a fare increase. Metro ended last year with an $11 million cash surplus which was carried forward to the 1979 fiscal year but that money may not be used to fund the improvements, Munro said, because it is "bad business to spend your carryover or funds set aside for capital improvements. If you do that," he explained, "the money won't be there when it's time to make the capital improvements."

One of Metro's sharpest cost increases came from steady hikes in the cost of diesel fuel needed to run the buses. Metro budgeted money in the 1980 budget for fuel costing $.84 by mid-year. "We are already there," Munro confirmed. Metro's budget was also based on an inflation rate of eight percent but inflation is now at 12 percent.

These and other difficulties could result in a slowdown of the plan to increase service but Munro said he is hopeful that the projects can be completed by September on schedule.

County council staff and county transportation planners are reviewing both the plan approved last week by Metro Council and the suggested improvements, including Federal Way, that are pending final Metro Council action.

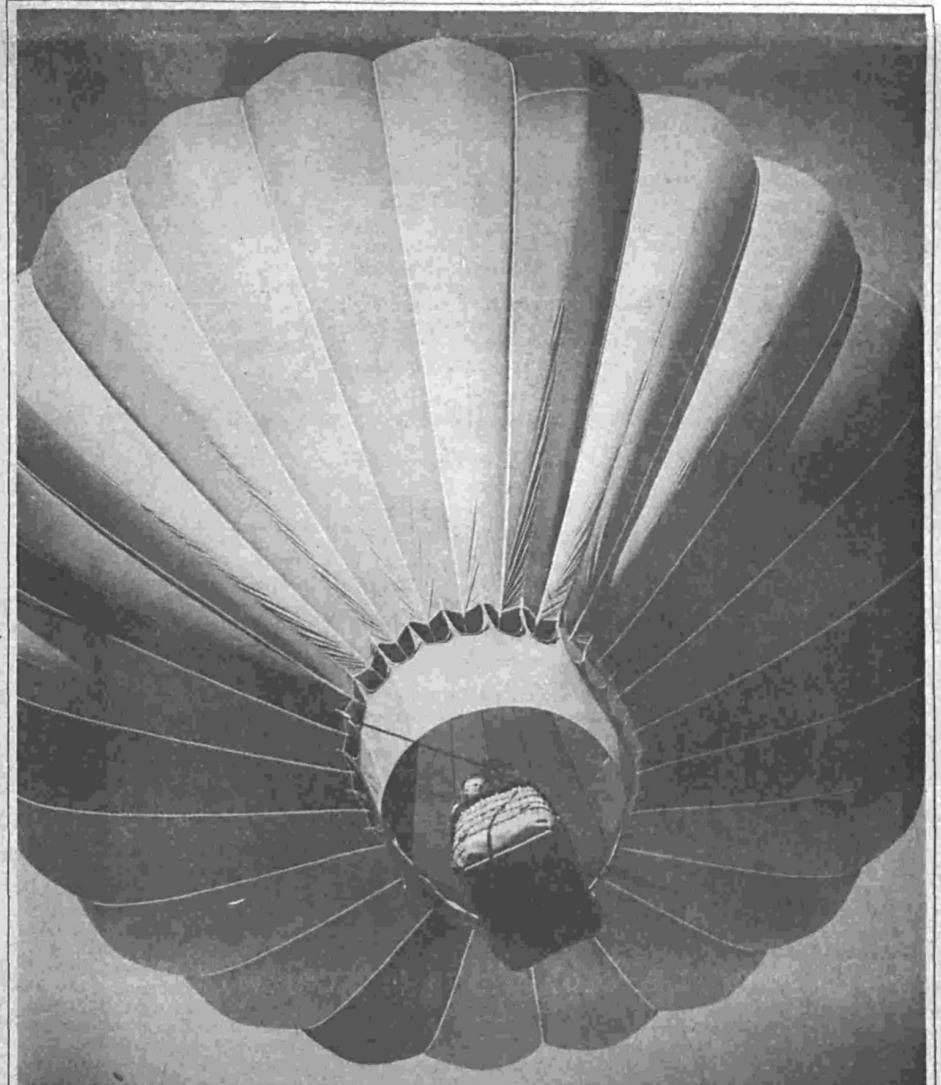

Smoke detector averts disaster

A smoke detector is credited in avoiding disaster Thursday morning when the home belonging to Federal Way's Patrick and Kathy Steele caught fire.

The Federal Way Fire Department reports that Patrick Steele had left for work and the two Steele children, ages six and nine, were in the kitchen when Kathy Steele turned the television on in the bedroom.

Kathy was in the bathroom when the smoke detector sounded and, upon opening the door, discovered the television had caught fire. She then evacuated the house at 32721 28th Ave. S.W.

There were no injuries; damage is estimated at $10,000. Two engines and an aid car responded to the blaze, controlling it within three minutes, the fire department said.

A FAIR BREEZE and warm sunshine blessed the Federal Aviation Administration balloon navigating tests of Tom Lee and Launa Seaver Friday morning. The balloon touched down just off 28th Avenue South, slightly shy of its destination near Weyerhaeuser. Lee was testing for his commercial license and Seaver, owner of the balloon, was attempting her private license.

Dinner out

There's an attitude change when one becomes a grandparent. You tend to overlook a few things that, before grandparenthood, would make you want to throw up.

Say, like little kids in restaurants.

Before I was a grandparent, I hated, I mean really hated, to go to dining places that allowed little children on the premises. For some reason, whenever a child and I had to share even the largest dining hall, I would get spilled on, distracted by, and caused to shudder by a crying, often impolite child.

Dining out for me, for many years, was one way to remove myself from the chaos of my own diningroom where my children, and there were many, learned to would find at home.

We often commented about the "nerve" of persons who would bring their offspring to a "nice dining place" and spoil the occasion for the rest of its customers. "Hm-mmmppppff", we would say. "The nerve, of such folks," we would add.

As our own children grew older we would take them with us on our "dining out" dates and they soon adopted our attitude that generally speaking, children under 10 should eat at home.

Oh, how annoyed we could become. "There is no excuse for parents to take their children to restaurants where they can upset adults. We'd ask for tables far away from those tables held by parents and small children.

Please understand that we were not children haters. We love children. But in those days, we felt that children had a place, and it was definitely not in the same restaurant with us.

Candlelight, champagne, and children? Never.

Last Sunday, my own darling grandchildren, along with their mothers and great grandmother, gave the management of the popular restaurant in Duvall a real test. The three youngsters, all under 10, well rested, and energetic, strained the nerves of a waitress, the endurance of the bus boy, and the patience of other diners.

We considerably chose a large table well away from the main dining area, ignorant that it was on the opposite side of the room from the restroom.

A young couple seated near our table which was in a secluded corner, asked to be moved. "Hmmpff," we said. "Intolerant persons," we added.

The three grandchildren behaved pretty much as other grandchildren might. One of them really wanted a hamburger instead of soup, another wanted hashbrowns instead of french fries. Nobody wanted milk when it came and one of them poured too much sugar in their cup. One child cried a rather loud piercing cry for about 30 seconds, causing other patrons to turn and look in our direction.

After the meal, the table looked like a disaster area and the young couple who walked by stepped gingerly. Some food had fallen to the floor.

It was an enjoyable meal for grandma, great grandma and the daughters and the grandchildren.

We ignored the glares and stares of some of the people and left the waitress a big tip.

Mark Kiersky

I would like a more balanced format instead of everything at 8 or 9 each night. It would be nice to be able to have interesting programs shown during the day and on weekends. Overall, I think it is improving. Personally, I would like to see more movies and newer ones.

Preston Paakkonen

I don't watch it that much because there is little on that I enjoy. But I would like to have more programs like "60 Minutes" and "20/20" and more good situation comedies like M.A.S.H. and "One Day at a Time."

Vjera Melton

There is nothing on during the day that interests me except the morning news and Phil Donahue. And I'm very tired of situation comedies, with their emphasis on sex and homosexuality, and cop shows. I would like to see more historical works like the ones on public television.

Robert Robinson

I don't think you could change it; they are going to do what they want to do. But I would like to see fewer commercials. Maybe we should have more paid television, like home box office, available.

What is your opinion of television, and what changes, if any, would you like to see in programming?

Erik Lundquist

I like news and movies and dislike serials, shows such as "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley." They're very boring, just light, cheap comedy. I would like more sports and more shows about American business and economics.

Anita E. Friedenberg

I watch it, but I think it's a waste of time. Most of the programs, the so-called comedies, are in very poor taste and are certainly not funny to me. I would like to see more drama programs, like the ones on public television, and more shows geared for children and adults.

Pauline Baird

I think there should be more family programming, and I would like to see more Christian programming. I don't like those stories that go on and on. They're not realistic. They have too much emotionalism in them.

Carol Fueston

I don't watch much television. I think the shows are not true to life. It's all violence. There are better things to do. I would like to see fewer cops and robbers, and violence.

Under the Capitol Dome

by Robert C. Cummings

Because there are so many King County members in the Legislature, you usually find at least a few on any special committee the lawmakers create.

But you won't find any on the Senate's Select Committee on Timber Taxation. Neither are there any from Pierce, Spokane or Snohomish County.

It wasn't an oversight, however. It was done deliberately.

Urban Areas Told: "Hands Off"

The purpose, according to Gary Odegaard, Centralia Democrat who heads the committee is to assure that the timbered areas get their "fair share" of the timber tax revenue.

The committee actually is a subcommittee of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, of which Odegaard is vice chairman.

Other members, also members of Ways and Means, are Del Bausch, Olympia; Barney Goltz, Bellingham; Jim Matson, Selah; Sid Morrison, Zillah, and Gordon Walgren, Bremerton.

Matson and Morrison are Republicans. The others are Democrats.

Solution Evasive

Special committees have worked on the timber tax problem for nearly a decade without coming up with an answer to which a majority could agree.

In fact, the timber tax law actually expired last Dec. 31, and had to be reenacted by the 1979 Legislature, which made it retroactive to Jan. 1.

Attorney General Slade Gorton had advised the legislators that the retroactive provision was legal, and it wasn't challenged.

Only Half a Loaf

The House Social and Health Services Committee, headed by A.A. Adams of Tacoma and Jim Whiteside of Yakima, is exploring the possibility of expanding the state's day care program.

The purpose is to reduce the number of elderly and physically handicapped persons in nursing homes by providing them with services in their own homes which they can't provide for themselves.

Pilot programs have proved that the cost is less than having them cared for in nursing homes.

But the lawmakers have been cautioned by the Department of Social and Health Services they shouldn't expect an expanded program to save the state money.

The DSHS officials conceded it would reduce the number of state subsidized patients in nursing homes, which would be desirable.

But they predicted many who presently resist going to a nursing home would apply for the day care program, and most of them would be eligible.

Can't Keep 'Em on the Farm

The "current use" basis for taxing farmlands, enacted several years ago to preserve agricultural lands from being sold to developers, or converted to industrial use, doesn't seem to be working out as planned.

Originally the land was being sold because it was being assessed on the basis of "best use," rather than "current use," and the owners couldn't afford to pay the resulting higher property taxes.

The law requires farmers to pay the difference in back taxes if they later elect to sell. But with escalating prices being paid for real estate, accompanied by soaring interest rates, the landowners have found they can't borrow money anywhere as cheaply as the 8 percent interest charge against back taxes—even when the back taxes and accrued interest charges are deducted from the purchase price.

So the House Agriculture Committee is searching for other means of preventing the state's farmlands from being gobbled up.

PDC Gives Green Light

The committee is awaiting with interest the results of a King County referendum which would permit the county to buy up agricultural land and lease it back to farmers.

King County officials now are busy trying to explain the purpose to their voters, and this activity has received the approval of the State Public Disclosure Commission.

The PDC has pointed out that the electorate must look to public officials for factual information in order to cast an informed vote, so a "fair representation of fact" doesn't violate a provision in the law prohibiting use of "public facilities" in campaigns.

The PDC also called attention to a previous ruling issued under similar circumstances in a school bond election.

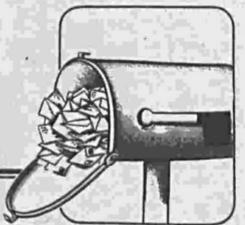

He Wears Two Hats

The House Committee on Social and Health Services has discovered that if it decides to make the State Board of Health an appeals board for Department of Social and Health Services rulings, it had better restructure the board.

Dr. James A. Beare, who heads the Health Services Division of DSHS—and participates in the rule-making process—is also (by law) chairman of the State Board of Health.

Future is in our hands

Editor:

The year 1979 has been proclaimed by the United Nations as the International Year of the Child. The babies who are born this year will be young adults—21-years-old—at the beginning of the next century, in the year 2000.

All the children who are alive now and who are born during the next 21 years will be the citizens of the 21st Century.

Every year, a special day is designated as "Universal Children's Day." Monday, Oct. 1, is the annual special day for children in the United States. This year, children participating in Universal Children's Day will be learning about what is happening to children throughout the world—their neighbors in the 21st Century.

What happens to all the world's children—both in our country and in other countries far away—will determine what kind of world our children will live in when they grow up. The United Nations, in proclaiming this year as the Year of the Child, is asking all of us to take a close look at the conditions of life of our children, here in Des Moines and in cities throughout the world as well—for these will crucially affect our future.

After taking a close look, we should now begin and-or improve activities that will help our children to grow into capable, constructive, creative adults. We must, if we want our future to be a happy one, give them the health care, nutrition and education that growing children need.

If we adults do this now, then the adults who will take over after the year 2000 will be better neighbors and the world of the 21st Century will be a better, safer, happier, more peaceful place than the world of the 20th Century has been.

Don't we all want that? Let's do what is needed to make it happen. The future is in our—and our children's—hands.

Respectfully,
Beth Lew

Jail, inmates await action

Just passin' time. Both the County Jail and inmates are just passin' time.

The 1930 courthouse jail awaits County Council action on County Executive John Spellman's plan to build a new jail. Council resistance slows the issue.

Dominos, cards, TV, "Rustler" magazine, all help pass the time for inmates. Dark, it's hard to know if it's night or day in the windowless tanks occupied by the long-termers. Pungent, the sweat is stifling in some catwalks.

One "escape" from cell life is the cafeteria.

Inmates come in shifts to two separate cafeterias. Felons come from the two floors atop the courthouse. Misdemeanants come from quarters in the 1950 Public Safety Building, where newer cells often face windows. (Whether a new jail will replace this facility is unresolved, according to Paul Leland, county environmental planner, although plans call for interim remodeling of both facilities.)

NO STEREOTYPE of inmates is evident.

One's a young white with long hair. Another resembles a university prof. Others are of various races. Over there is a seaman worried about losing his job for swiping a T-shirt. Still another is white-collared, aloof.

Pretty scruffy, some are. Needing sandpaper to sand a growth off their soles.

They eyeball items of value. "Got any cash?" one asks.

Obviously they covet guns, too. Guards don't carry guns, for fear inmates will get them. A sign reads, "Searches for me and thee." The guard warns, "Don't get too close to the bars."

And Lt. Mike Graber is concerned about his jail: "You can observe the overcrowding. We have 887 today, including on work release. Last weekend, we had significantly over 900."

Spellman reports beds and bedding run short, at times.

Graber says, "Architecture fights us. Certain inmates must be separated, by law. It's very difficult, if not impossible, to separate them (properly) because you don't have the right amount of cells."

"For example, when you have a juvenile felon and a juvenile misdemeanor, you have two people taking up 20 beds (two 10-man tanks) if you can divide them up into smaller groups, you can house them to protect them from themselves."

"WE HAVE far more with mental problems than we've ever had before. We average over 90 daily. They take a larger proportion of time." A psychiatrist is on duty eight hours per day.

The more emotionally troubled are segregated from the less troubled. All told, they occupy three to four tanks. Homosexuals and informants are also separated from the populace. So are aliens.

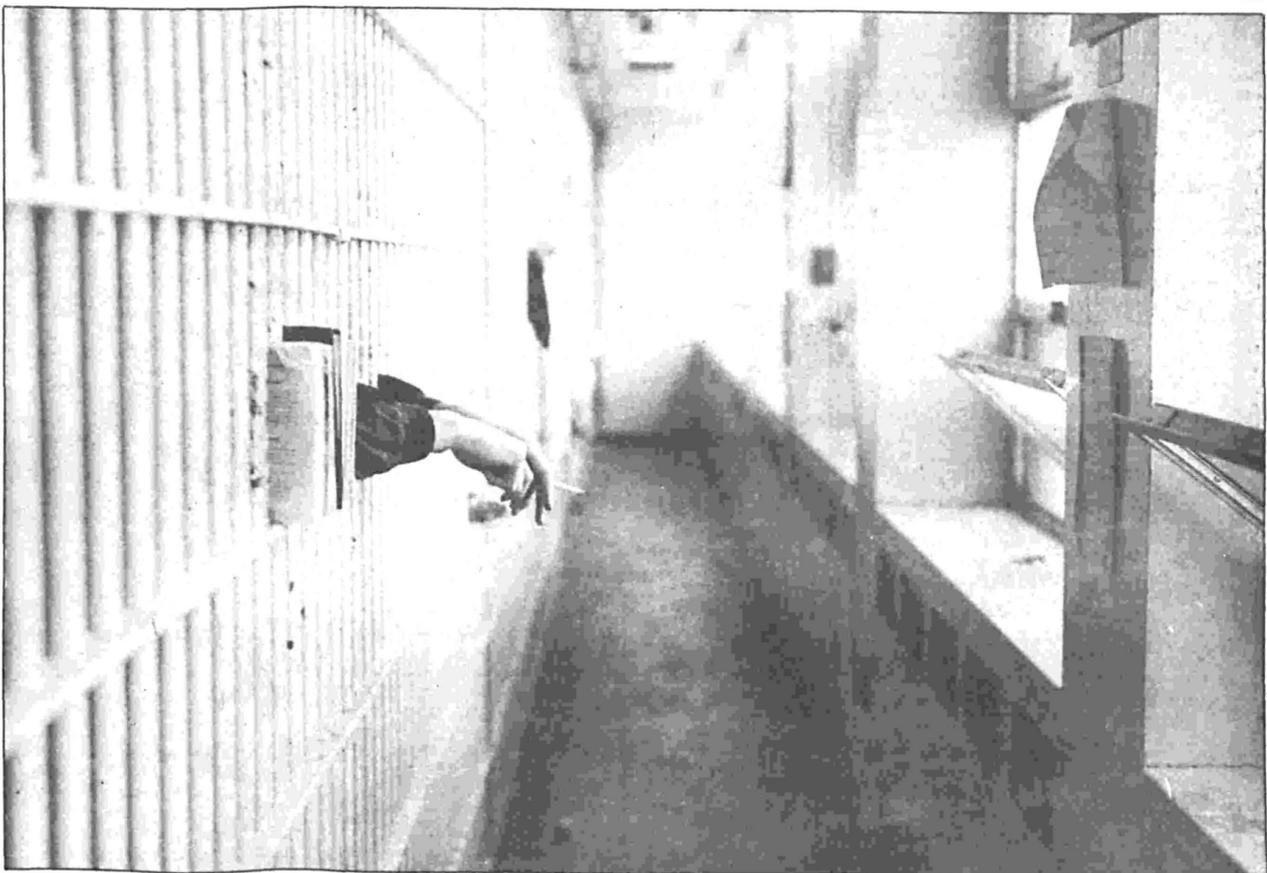

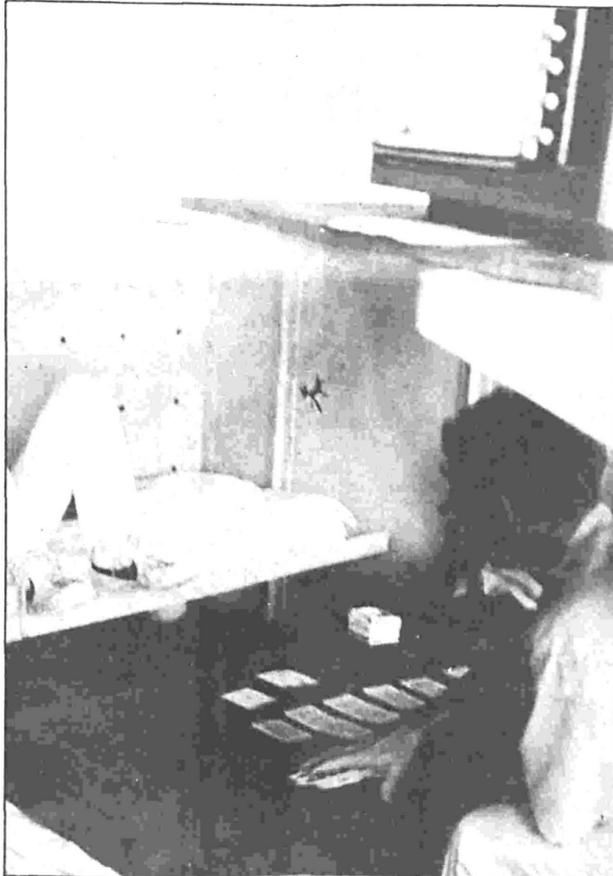

Downstairs from the courthouse jail, councilpersons work on the dilemma. State standards demand a new jail.

There's enough (mostly undeveloped) land between the County Administration Building and I-5 for a high-rise jail. Spellman is pressing to purchase it before a January deadline for applying for state money; the state is expected to pick up most of the $70.5-million tab.

Spellman sensed the council wouldn't buy a bond issue to be submitted to the voters, according to a Spellman spokesperson, so he switched to the alternative of councilmanic bonds. County seed money could be used to buy the site.

One councilwoman opposes 300 work-release inmates in the International District's converted Immigration and Naturalization Service Building, a part of Spellman's plan. Other councilpersons object to a state standard that calls for 60 percent single-man cells.

A complicated issue. Takes time to sort it all out.

DORMITORY cell in the downtown County Jail; inmates take a break from cell life during mealtime; bars in the window; cards and TV pass the time in cell life; waiting, waiting for release.

Teens jailed after 120-mph I-5 chase

Two Seattle teenagers were behind bars Friday morning after they led 11 cars from four police departments on a predawn 45-mile chase that near its end reached speeds of about 120 miles per hour.

The two were being held, one at King County Jail and the other at the youth center, pending the filing of felony charges under a tough new law that forbids vehicular flight from law enforcement officers. The law was passed by the Legislature at its last session and went into effect on

Sep. 1. Police said the driver of the car, a red 1967 Chevrolet with a "jacked-up" rear end, tried to get away even after officers forced the vehicle off Interstate 5 south of Tacoma. It took four men to subdue the suspect, police said.

The driver, 18, was the one taken to county jail, his companion, a 16-year-old boy, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Beginning on Empire Way at about 3 a.m., the chase quickly reached the interstate. At first it involved only Seattle Police Department officers, who had attempted to pull the suspects over to write them a speeding ticket.

BUT AS IT reached the interstate, the Seattle officers were joined by members of the Washington State Patrol, the county police, and eventually the Tacoma Police and the Pierce County Sheriff's Department.

The King County officers involved included Dave Dines, D. R. Issacson, Bruce Kalin and Kevin Fagerstrom.

Fagerstrom was driving the car which finally pulled ahead of the suspects and enabled three other police vehicles to bracket it and force it off the road.

"The suspect," Fagerstrom said, "kept ramming into me and trying to run me off the road."

It was just south of the McChord Air Force Base exit that the chase finally ended.

Fagerstrom said he had no idea why the suspect fled or why he continued fighting after his vehicle had been stopped.

The driver's companion, police said, claimed to have been asleep during the entire episode.

Budget reveals Port in good fiscal shape

The Port of Seattle expects to enter the coming fiscal year with a cash balance of more than $65 million, most of it invested money.

The Port will operate in 1980 with estimated revenues of $113.6 million and total estimated balances and receipts of more than $203 million including local tax levy money of about $14 million.

The aviation division of the Port which includes Seattle-Tacoma International Airport will have an estimated cash revenue in 1980 of $27 million but expenses of only $19.3 million with a balance of $7.7 million after expenses, according to the budget approved Wednesday by the port commission.

The real estate division is expected to expend only about $1.7 million of its $32.5 million revenues and the marine division is also seen as having a larger revenue than needed to meet operating expenses.

Administrative departments within the port will have a budget of $11.5 million with the executive department and the data processing department highest at $3 million and $2 million respectively.

The marine and air terminal agency will also contribute $369,716 to memberships and service agreements with various organizations the largest shares going to membership in the Washington Public Ports Association and the Seattle-King County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Total expenditures for 1980 will be around $175 million and expected cash balance at the end of 1980 of more than $28 million. The airport development fund will be about $47 million all of which is budgeted for such items as maintenance and operations, administration, payment to revenue bond funds and capital improvements and acquisition.

Among the marine terminal budget items for the coming year are the $10 million the port commission has authorized for high-level bridge construction over the Duwamish and an unitemized amount for development of the Seacrest Marina. The port budget document claims that the costs for all marine and airport terminal projects will be in excess of the funds appropriated for capital improvements in 1980.

Sea-Tac Airport projects, also unitemized in the report, include a new wing on the parking terminal, more satellite transit cars, west side roads, sewers and fencing, relocation of the west side view point and land acquisition and noise monitoring and insulation.

The port is authorized to tax county property owners $.45 per $1,000 valuation for its general fund and $12.06 per $1,000 for the bond redemption fund. That nets an estimated $13.7 million for port operations based on the $23.75 billion value of assessed property in the county.

Texas man imprisoned for local robberies

A 21-year old Texas man who robbed three grocery stores and a motel in Federal Way last December has been sentenced to life in prison by King County Superior Court Judge Norman B. Ackley.

Robert Wayne McClelland pleaded guilty in February to three counts of first-degree robbery in exchange for dismissal of two other similar charges. He was then found guilty Aug. 31 in King County Superior Court before Judge Barbara Rothstein of being an habitual criminal. The life sentences will run concurrently.

McClelland was originally charged with the Dec. 12 robbery of the 7-11 Store at 104 SW 312th St. where he demanded that the clerk "Give me all your money." He netted $120 in the raid but the clerk tripped a camera which recorded his picture.

The next day McClelland held-up the Redondo Heights Grocery Store, 27905 Pacific Highway

South. After he pointed a handgun at the clerk, the clerk pointed a shotgun at the robber who snatched it away and continued the robbery.

December 16 a grocery on Rainier Avenue South was robbed of $120. McClelland was also charged with that crime.

December 20 McClelland robbed the Topper Inn Motel, 28620 Pacific Hwy. S., of $67.50. Later the same evening he held-up the Secoma Market, 33320 Pacific Hwy. S. getting away with $165.

He was arrested only hours later at the Eastwind Motel in Federal Way along with his brother and a man from Arizona.

McClelland also had a prior criminal record in Texas, court documents revealed.

Park addition still planned

Moves by the federal government to cut back on dollars spent for park and recreation projects should have little effect on plans to add some 120 acres to Dash Point State Park, the State Department of Parks and Recreation said last week.

Although some park projects within the state will suffer as a result of fewer federal dollars, chief of park planning for the state Bill Bush said that the Dash Point addition is one of the state's number one priorities, and should receive whatever money is available first.

The state has been working for more than two years to obtain the wooded acreage adjacent to the park. That land, currently owned by the Dash Point Cooperative Water Association, was to have been purchased this year with matching funds from the federal and state governments.

However, when the federal government cut back its grants in an attempt to trim the budget, there was some question as to whether the promised money would be available.

"We're still going on that project," Bush said. "We've gotten the go-ahead and there's not much question that it won't clear."

He said, however, that he doesn't know when the money pending final clearance through federal channels, Bush said, estimating it should be completed within a month. No date has been set for the actual inclusion of the land in the park.

You lucky winner!

"Congratulations! You have been selected to receive one of the following prizes."

Those cheerful words decorated the doors of several Federal Way homes last week, promising color t.v. sets, sewing machines and 16-speed blenders. And guess what? They're FREE.

To claim the prize, the lucky recipient was required to call a number and ask for "Lucy." But he had to hurry, because the offer was void midnight 48 hours after date of delivery. A call to the number indicated that the prizes were demonstration of a vacuum product currently being introduced to the King County market.

When the demonstrator arrived, he would bring the key that matched the card with one of the five prizes. The resident had no obligation to purchase the product, and he still would receive his prize, Lucy said.

But, as one skeptical Federal Way resident who called said, "You can bet everybody gets the carving set, not the color t.v."

Hoppe and rival may have computer debate

by Carolyn Logan

Olde style politicians debated, wooing voters from a wooden box or TV screen. The newest style debate could well be a computer debate.

King County Assessor Harley Hoppe recently challenged his opponent to a computer debate to help voters learn the truth before the Nov. 6 general election.

His challenge follows on the heels of a charge by Democratic opponent Hank McGuire that Hoppe won't debate him.

Hoppe, a Republican, explained how a computer debate would work:

Simply put, he and McGuire would feed information into a computer about assessing practices. The computer would spit out whether a poor community was taxed more heavily than a rich community.

HERE'S why Hoppe believes a computer debate is necessary.

McGuire has repeatedly charged that Hoppe's assessing practices are inequitable, saying Hoppe favors some rich areas by taxing them lighter than some poor areas.

"My response has always been that I don't," Hoppe explained. "If we go face-to-face in a debate, he'll make the same charge, and I'll make the same response. So the public will not be served."

"What I am suggesting is that I would like to see the issue resolved in a clear-cut fashion."

"Let an impartial source — the computer — say which is right."

Hoppe suggested selecting two areas as to price, one more wealthy than the other. Then the two foes would run a ratio study on the two areas.

Each side could choose someone for assistance. McGuire could use Earl Bell, a University of Washington professor, or Al Wilson, a former employee of the assessor's office who supports McGuire, according to Hoppe. He encouraged using Wilson because he's familiar with the office and equipment.

WHO WILL pay for use of the computer?

Hoppe recommended that each campaign purse foot half of the tab, since it would be improper for him to use the office for campaign purposes.

The pair could use the assessor's computer, if a prosecuting attorney finds it legal to reimburse the county for use of the equipment, Hoppe explained. Approval would also have to be sought from Helmut Endres, manager of the County Systems Services Division, according to Hoppe.

If county computers couldn't be used, he said the task could be accomplished at any available computer. Hoppe suggested facilities at Boeing Computer Services, University of Washington and Seattle First National Bank.

Hoppe said he doesn't believe lack of time would prevent a computer debate. "It could be done over a weekend without too much trouble," he explained.

McGuire welcomes the computer debate: "That's great," he exclaimed. "It would be an excellent idea to verify (our findings) with his records."

But he won't let Hoppe off the hook on a face-to-face debate. "There's a lot more at issue than tax uniformity — things like access to data, operations within his department and his administration," McGuire insisted.

PTSA workshop Tuesday

The Highline Council of PTSA is sponsoring a workshop Tuesday designed to prepare parents for their upcoming conferences with teachers.

The meeting will be held at the Educational Resources and Administrative Center, 15675 Ambaum Blvd. S.W., at 7:30 p.m.

Both parents and teachers will conduct the workshop. After the workshop, a parents' checklist will be compiled and sent to the local PTSA units for distribution.

Students: button up your overcoats

Classrooms in junior and senior high schools in the Highline School District, as well as other school districts, will be kept at 65 degrees Fahrenheit this winter.

Secondary schools fall under the federal regulations specifying lower room temperatures to save energy, according to David Zeigler, assistant superintendent for business and plant.

Elementary schools are exempted from the 65-degree requirement, he added.

"While the lower temperatures in our secondary schools may not be noticed by students in classes requiring physical activity Zeigler said, "it may seem a little cool in classes where activity is largely restricted to seat work."

He suggested that parents of junior and senior high school students make sure their youngsters wear warm clothing on cool days. Sweaters and long pants for both boys and girls are advisable when the weather turns cold, he said.

Non-classroom areas in all schools and all district non-school sites also will comply with the temperature regulation, according to Zeigler. Where hardships can be shown, he said, the district will request exemptions.

Winners exhibit paintings

Kent Valley artists Les and Tina Layman will display their paintings at the Caldwell Health Center through Oct. 6. The art show is an added attraction to the Fall Festival at the Judson Park Retirement Home, 23600 Marine View Drive South. Both Laymans have displaced their paintings as far south as San Francisco Bay. Local shows include Southcenter Crossroads, Factoria Square and various South King County banks. Tina Layman was awarded the blue ribbon as the "people's choice" at Meeker Days in Kent. The Caldwell Health Center may be viewed during business and visitor hours, including evenings.

Happiness at grade schools is a library that's open all day

by Barbara Butts
The Brigadoon Elementary School library open on the very first day of the school year?

"Unheard of," said Brigadoon's principal, Donald Swanson, recently in a tone that conveyed a real sense of wonder.

"I've been with the (Federal Way School) District for about 20 years," he said, "and this is the first time I can recall seeing that happen."

What Swanson is raving about is this year's new system of managing the libraries at the 16 elementary schools in the district.

Until about two years ago, the elementary schools were staffed by half-time librarians and volunteers to take up the slack.

Then, after a succession of levy failures, librarians were dropped from the elementary school staffs altogether, leaving the full maintenance of the libraries to classroom teachers and parent volunteers.

This year four full-time librarians have been hired to supervise the libraries, to purchase the books and to instruct the children in library use. Each librarian is responsible for four schools.

In addition to the fully qualified librarians, an audiovisual technician has been hired for each elementary school, making it possible for the schools to have the libraries available to children all day each school day without fail.

The technicians have either completed a two-year training program or have comparative experience. They do most of the leg work, including checking in and checking out books, keeping the shelves in order and maintaining the card catalogs.

What has made the new system possible is the transfusion of needed dollars from the state as a result of the legislature's passage of full-funding legislation during the last session.

Swanson says that, at this point, the library changes have been especially helpful.

"This is probably the most impactful program of the 26 programs that have been initiated or brought back this year because of the additional funding," he said. "It seems to be the most noticeable, the one that has had the most impact on the kids."

Grass Roots Gardening

by Ginna Koontz

The major bulbs planted in autumn burst forth to become the blooming wonders of spring. Blooming wonders because each bulb is a gem case enclosing flowers and leaves that will burst through the earth to bloom.

Gardeners could spend a lifetime learning about bulbs and always discover something new. But it may take a few years to find this out. Most of us just plant tulips, daffodils or hyacinths because you know they are dependable, always providing the first brilliant hues of springtime.

The most popular garden bulbs are daffodils (narcissus). Daffodils grow wild in the Mediterranean area, central Europe and east to China and Japan. Once planted they bloom for years needing to be divided when flower size as long or longer than the petal segments; large cupped daffodils, small cupped daffodils with short cups less than one-third the length of the outer petal segments; the double petaled, Tazetta hybrids that are bunch flowered and the miniature species, varieties and hybrids. There is a miscellaneous division of narcissus whose characteristics do not fit any of the above categories.

Purchase fresh, plump, large size blemish free bulbs. "King Alfred," the most popular large trumpet daffodil has a giant bulb, often with two or more snouts, each producing blooms. Set the giant daffodil bulbs at least six inches deep, plant next smaller size five or more inches deep and the smallest at least four inches deep. Space bulbs four to eight inches apart.

The ideal daffodil soil is deep, fertile well drained sandy loam. If soil is heavy clay lighten with additions of sand and humus or compost. Incorporate 5-10-5 fertilizer into planting area before setting bulbs. I like to add one tablespoon treble super phosphate in the bottom of each hole before I set the bulb.

The number of ways daffodils can be used in the garden is one of the joys of growing them. Naturalizing in sweeping drifts by gently tossing the bulbs onto the prepared soil and then plant where bulbs fall. Miniature species and hybrid daffodils are ideal for rockeries and close-up viewing in raised beds, patio insets, window boxes or at the base of container grown trees or shrubs. The jonquils are ideal bulbs for banks of pools and streams because they thrive in cool moist places. Yellow daffodils lend vibrant color or contrasts in borders of blue primroses, forget-me-nots, purple Aubretia, white candytuft and English daisies, violas and pansies.

Narcissus are effectively planted among and undergound covers like ivy, thyme, vinca minor, ajuga or euonymus. Daffodils are superb cut flowers but don't cut off the foliage to use in flower arrangements. Those green leaves manufacture the food to create next year's bloom. Plant a few inexpensive daffodil varieties for cut foliage or use other types of foliage. Cut daffodil stems straight across and keep water in vases shallow, barely covering cut stem ends.

The most serious pest of the daffodil is the narcissus bulb fly. Dust bulbs and soil with bulb dust before planting then spray or dust as leaves appear and repeat at two week intervals. Aphids and thrips can be pesky but controlled by using Orthene or Malathion. Read the insecticide label and carefully follow all directions.

October is the time to scoop out some fertile earth, plant a handful of daffodil bulbs and next spring be rewarded with a veritable pot-o-gold, the golden and sometimes fragrant daffodil.

Leadership for 4-H

As part of National 4-H Week, Oct. 1-6, the Pierce County Cooperative Extension Service is training new leaders for the coming year. The training workshop will be held on Oct. 3 and 4, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Pierce County Annex, 2401 S. 35th St.

Prospective leaders will meet the 4-H staff, county agents who work with the 4-H program, and experienced club leaders. Topics of all aspects of club work will be covered and two 4-H clubs will demonstrate business and project meetings. Interested adults, 19 years and older, should call the 4-H office at 593-4194. An orientation will be given before the meeting begins.

Auxiliary will meet

In lieu of the monthly luncheon at a member's home, the Des Moines-Zenith Orthopedic Auxiliary will conduct its October Board luncheon at Michel's restaurant in Des Moines on the first Thursday of the month. A business meeting will follow the noon luncheon, presided over by president Mrs. Johnston Pero. Plans for the first fund raising project of fall will be at the top of the agenda. Mrs. Trafford Burnett and Mrs. J. Clifford Graves will serve as co-chairmen of the event. At October 11 meetings in four members' homes, including Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Graves, Mrs. Robert Moss and Mrs. W.O. The sewing committee, headed by Mrs. Cyrus Varnum, will report on the coming All-City project parades and Festival of Trees, in which the Des Moines group will take part. Sales of COH calendars and Christmas cards will be discussed, along with reports from the COH Thrift Shop. Ten new members will be part of activities this year.

4-H is an informal education program for boys and girls nine to 19 years old. The program's learn-by-doing philosophy encourages young people to acquire "real life" skills and develop citizenship and leadership abilities. 4-H programs are available to all youth and adults regardless of race, color, or national origin. 4-H operates through a partnership of government, land-grant universities, volunteer leaders and the private sector. It is administered through the universities in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, with the Cooperative Extension responsible for program leadership.

Keeping heat in, winter out

by Pat Jenkins
 Keeping the home fires burning and a light in the window are fine for some things, but without some winterizing measures, they won't do much to conserve energy in the cold months ahead.
 The Washington Energy Extension Service has ways for homeowners to keep Old Man Winter out and their heating bills in check. Some ways are easy, others require extra money and effort.
 First, he easy ones.
 "You should eliminate air leakage — places where heated air can escape from the house," said Ted Haskell, coordinator of the extension service's home energy program. "This can be done by caulking the cracks in the exterior walls, weather-stripping doors and windows, and installing an air-tight fireplace door. There can be a great draft up the chimney."
 Other conservation steps are simple but often overlooked, Haskell said.
 By closing drapes at night, you save more on your electricity bill than by turning off lights.
 "AND," HE ADDED, "turn down the thermostat. This varies, but assuming you start with your thermostat at 72 degrees, you can save three percent on your heating bill for each degree you turn down to 65 degrees...

 Now for the harder, more costly methods of winterizing.
 Storm windows are effective in preventing heat loss through window panes, but unless they're home-made, expect a sizable bill, Haskell said.
 Attic, floor, and wall insulation is a good idea if there is none already lining those areas, Haskell noted. Again, however, installing insulation is expensive.
 The bottom line in winterizing is that it often takes money to save money.
 "Homes and energy savings differ significantly, but it's not unusual to save $200-$300 a year and sometimes more by doing a thorough job of weatherizing," Haskell said. "That's especially true this winter with the higher price of heating oil."
 PREDICTIONS of how much more an average American family will pay this winter for heating oil range from $540 by a national consumer group to $200 by federal officials.

 As a hedge against the soaring prices, "we recommend an annual tune-up for oil furnaces. The tune-ups pay for themselves" in better fuel efficiency, Haskell said.
 Of other heating systems, Haskell said, "Electric heat is cheap here with our abundant source of hydroelectricity, but if we put more pressure on it, we eventually will have to go to thermal heating."
 And wood-burning stoves, which have been making a big comeback, "are great if you have a good, low-cost supply of wood."
 People shopping for or building a new home can do so with energy conservation in mind, Haskell said.
 "Look for high R values of insulation — R-30 in ceilings, R-19 in walls and below floors that are over unheated spaces," he suggested.
 OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS include passive solar heating (windows facing south and a masonry floor to store heat) and a vestibule entranceway (an outer door leading into a lobby-like entrance, where there is another door opening into the house).

 Haskell said there is little difference in the construction of houses in heat-retention, although "brick homes have a slight advantage in that they don't have quite as big a problem with air leaks."
 All aspects of home energy conservation are the subject of a series of energy extension service that will start Wednesday at Highline Community College.
 Lakeland Community Club (first Thursday, each month, 8 p.m.) Regular meetings; (9-20, 6 p.m.) Potluck, 4016 S. 352nd St.

School lunch menus now offer variety

Secondary students in Federal Way schools will have a greater variety of food available to them in the lunchroom, according to Wanda Grant, director of food services.
 "We will provide a greater variety of entrees for the students," she said, "and at the same time reduce the amount of wasted food."
 On Monday, for example, secondary students will have a choice of the regular entree which will be country fried steak, or a hamburger, French dip sandwich, or a burrito as entree, a choice of tossed salad, mashed potatoes or soup, a choice of dessert, and milk, all for the price of 70 cents.
 In the past, high school students had a choice of only two entrees and no choice of vegetables or dessert, plus milk.
 Federal regulations require that two ounces of protein be served in the school lunch entree, Grant explained, and there is no assurance on the amount of protein in the commercially prepared sandwiches.
 The change on Monday will take place in the district's three senior high schools and five junior high schools.

Utilities, homeowners gang up on energy

Manned by "energy auditors" and armed with no-interest loans and hot-water tank blankets, Seattle City Light and the Puget Sound Power and Light Co. are homeowners in the fight to conserve home energy.
 Both utilities have free programs that assist their customers in curbing energy use and lowering power bills.
 City Light, a public utility, sends energy consultants on request to private homes, where they conduct a two-hour check of heating systems, doors and windows (looking for spaces where heated air can escape), and the water-heating system.
 Two to three weeks later, a homeowner will be mailed a detailed list of recommendations on what can be done to make the home more energy efficient, spokeswoman Daryl Hartnett said.

"The recommendations are tailored to what a homeowner can expect to spend," Hartnett said. "We also sell, at cost, pipe wrapping, caulking, weather stripping, and water tank jackets."
 To make an appointment with an energy consultant, Hartnett said, call 625-3237. The consultants are booked into November, so expect a five-week wait, she added.
 Conservation advice over the phone is also available at the same number, she said.
 PUGET POWER'S home energy analysis program is similar to City Light's, except Puget calls its home inspectors "energy auditors."
 Also, said spokesman Hank Johns, the private utility grants no-interest loans to homeowners who request one to help them meet recommended conservation measures.

 "Each part of the home is analyzed on itself. The customer can then choose what improvement he wants to make and which (improvement) he wants a loan for," Johns said.
 To be eligible for a loan, a home must have been on electric heat prior to Aug. 7, 1978, the date the loan program was initiated.
 The loans apparently have been welcomed, Johns said.
 "Of 4,000 houses we'd inspected through August (of 1979), 218 owners did not request a loan. Only 528 houses couldn't be improved," he reported.
 Johns said Puget Power gives away wraps for water heaters and insulates heating ducts.
 The company's branch offices may be telephoned to make an appointment with an energy auditor. "Some areas have a long waiting list," Johns said.

New tax credit available

Employers qualifying for the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit program can get a substantial tax break, according to IRS District Director Arturo A. Jacobs. Unlike the New Jobs Credit which it replaces, the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit is not subject to the $100,000 limitation.
 Claiming the Credit on a federal income tax return may be worth up to an additional $3,000 per certified employee for the employees first year of employment and up to $1,500 per certified employee for the second year. The program is based on the wages of certain workers hired after September 28, 1978 and is a percentage of wages paid them between January 1, 1979 and December 31, 1980.
 "These employees must be certified as members of any of seven economically or socially disadvantaged groups before the Credit may be claimed," Jacobs said. Generally, these groups include certain handicapped individuals, Vietnam-era veterans, welfare recipients, ex-convicts and certain groups of young people. Local agencies which will certify members of these groups are the Washington State Employment Security Agency and qualified schools offering a qualified cooperative education program.
 More information about the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit is available in Publication 906, "Targeted Jobs Tax Credit and WIN Credit", free from the IRS by calling 1-800-542-7890.

Male dancers wanted:

Where, oh where, have they gone?

Somehow, it didn't seem right.
There I was fox-trotting (somewhat) to "Alexander's Ragtime Band," followed, it seemed, by about 20 sets of wistful feminine eyes.
The Thursday afternoon dance I was crashing was one of those held weekly from 1 to 3 at the Federal Way Senior Citizens Center, located at 33324 Pacific Highway S.
For dancers 55 years of age or older, it is one of the more promising of entertainment opportunities in the area.

But the dances are suffering from a chronic shortage of men.
Bob Erickson, my dancing mate, whose good looks have not been dimmed by age, had done his part, as had the other men who attended the dance that day.
They had made the rounds, dancing in turn with as many ladies as possible.
But the odds were not good: four men to a score of women.
The 65-year-old Erickson said he didn't mind the odds at all.

"I'm delighted," he said. "I got all these girls to dance with."
"When I was a teenager in Ketchikan, Alaska, there were so many more men than women that if you asked a girl for a date, she would tell you to call her up at 6 on Saturday night. It was terrible on the ego."
"Here, nobody has turned me down yet. I have no problem with my ego now."
But the shortage of dancing partners is mourned by the women, who often resort to dancing with each other.

"I haven't had a partner often enough," said Lulu Sampson of Federal Way. "There's not enough men here."
"The shortage of men is not only here," added Helen Cox, an Auburn swinging single. "It's everywhere."
Some of the women have their own partners — their husbands.
"We have a hard time keeping our partners," said Esther Fitch of Auburn. But she grinned and added that she really did not mind sharing her husband, Fred.

All of the male dancers who attended on this day were married. But that didn't keep them from helping out.
"That handsome man asked me to dance," said Sarah Martin, pointing Erickson out to me. Sarah's husband, Lloyd, was playing drums with the band, Edna and the Three-Cornered Squares.

Early beating fatal to Raiders, 37-21

by Jon Buchholtz
Stunned quickly by a Ram interception and immediate touchdown toss, the Raiders from Jefferson never quite recovered as the visitors from Rogers posted a 37-22 Victory Friday night at Federal Way Memorial field. The loss dropped Jefferson's record to 1-3.

"That pass play just stunned us," Raider mentor Jim Gard commented. "The kids dropped their heads and we let down through the rest of the half."

Beaten by poor field position throughout the initial half, the Raiders were only able to penetrate Ram territory once, Jefferson found itself backed up numerous times in surrendering its 20 first-half points.

only eight total—two coming on the ground. Rogers pounded out 22 first downs — 19 via the rushing route.

Jefferson held the visitors on their first two drives, forcing punts. On the Raiders' second possession, however, Junior quarterback Jay Gard threw an errant pass which was picked off by Scott Stolzenburg, who later scored twice for the Rams. On the first play from scrimmage, Kurt Larsen connected with senior Ken McGlauffin on a 32-yard scoring toss.

This seemed to shock the Raiders as they turned over the ball on their next four consecutive possessions. Rogers took full advantage of the situation by scoring on two of their three chances. Only a Mark Johnson interception at the Raider goal line plugged the Ram offense.

Jefferson had a hard time throughout the game stopping Roger's running attack. The Rams pounded the turf 60 times for a net gain of 230 yards.

"I thought that we could contain them better," Gard said. "It just came to the point where we let them handle us. Saying that we simply let down is too easy, but it's the truth. I've got to credit Rogers though, they played tough."

Gard's troops started the second half in familiar hole after the kickoff. Randy Buchanan handled Jay Gard on the first play for a nine-yard loss. Two plays later, the Raiders punted again, and the Rams were in business on the Raider 36. A clipping penalty saved Jefferson and Rogers settled with a 36-yard field goal. That score made it 23-3 with 7:07 remaining in the third quarter.

It was 30-3 before the Raiders opened up their offense. First, Gard tossed a floater over the right flats which Gregg Joshlin haled in. The 6'0 senior scampered untouched the distance for a 77-yard touchdown reception. After trading punts, Gard again connected with the speedy split-end on a 70-yard pass-run play. It was first and goal on the Ram four. Following a penalty and series of rushes, Gard caught Pete Moser alone in the endzone to make it 30-15.

The Raiders kicked off again and as soon as you can say fumble, Raider Dennis Klieber picked one up and carried it six yards before being brought down.

"That play was crucial," Gard exclaimed, beating his fist against the wall. "It was a tremendous play for us. Too bad he couldn't have carried it in!"

Two passes and 49 yards later, Gard and Joshlin were slapping palms again in the endzone. Joshlin's four receptions netted him 198 yards.

Jefferson was down 30-21 following the botched two-point conversion try. The pass was completed in the endzone but the Raiders were caught pushing off for an offensive pass-interference penalty.

"That was a big, big play," sighed Gard. "It's too bad, they took it away from us. (They?)... well, whatever."

The ensuing onside kick backfired as the kick ended up on the Raider 38. Rogers took it in for a game-ending score.

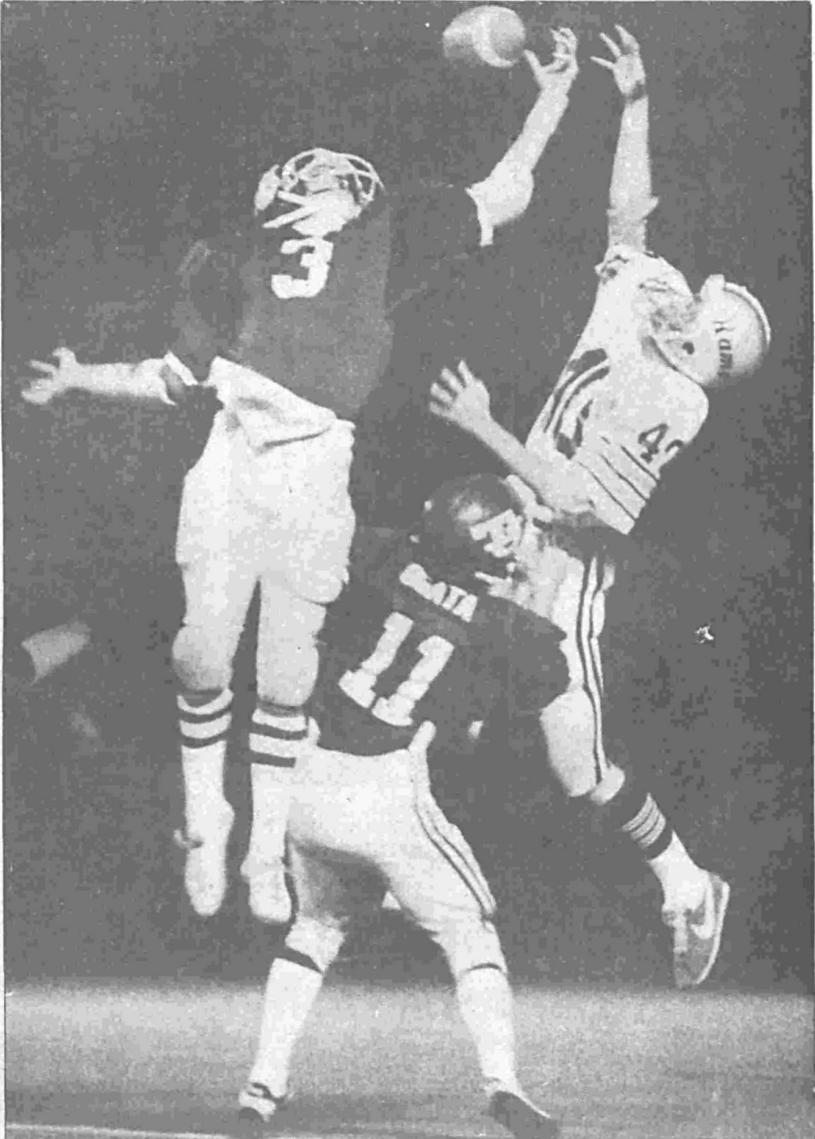

The Red and Gold machine travels to Sumner next Friday to meet the Spartans. Game time is slated for 8.

Late score nails FW

by Bart Potter
The breaks. They can win for you or they can kill you.

"You make your own breaks," Federal Way coach Doug Adkins said after Friday's 7-6 Clover Park win over the Eagles.

In any case, the ball took some decided Clover Park bounces in the second half.

The most crucial was a Federal Way fumble that set up the Warriors on the Eagle 35 with just under six minutes to play with Federal Way leading 6-0.

Just moments later, a roughing the passer call on Eagle defensive end Mike Bourbonnie moved the ball to the Eagle 13. Alton Edwards scampered for a quick nine yards, and Chuck Dennis, who carried four times for 17 yards in the mini-drive, got the final four over the right side of the line for the score.

Steve Allen's crucial conversion kick was perfect.

The Eagle frustration continued in their next two possessions when quarterback Butch Cratsenber, attempting to pass the Eagles up the field in a hurry, was sacked once on fourth down and scrambled to within inches of the first down marker on another fourth down situation.

EVEN THAT Clover Park touchdown would have been meaningless were it not for a clipping call that nullified a 30-yard Todd McGrady touchdown run early in the second half.

"You can't change them," was all Adkins said about the pivotal clipping and roughing penalties.

The Eagles scored their only touchdown late in the first half after a bizarre set of circumstances left them mired at their own one-yard line.

The possession before the scoring drive, the Eag started on their 30. A 25-yard Cratsenber pass to Mike Hillis was nullified by a clip moving the ball back to the nine. From there Cratsenber scrambled twice for 22 yards before a personal foul on Clover Park gave the Eagles the ball on their 46.

CRATS HIT Dean Youngblood for 35 to move the Eagles into field goal range. But Blaine Wilson's 43-yard try fell short.

The Eag defense, outstanding all evening in containing Warrior speedsters Dennis and Gerald Denman, held on, setting up the CP punt that was downed at the one.

Crats moved the Eagles those 99 yards in 10 plays beginning with just 2:32 left in the half. Cratsenber hit Youngblood for 34 yards to put the Eagles on the CP 29.

After two misses, Crats found Dean again in the end zone with just eight seconds left on the clock.

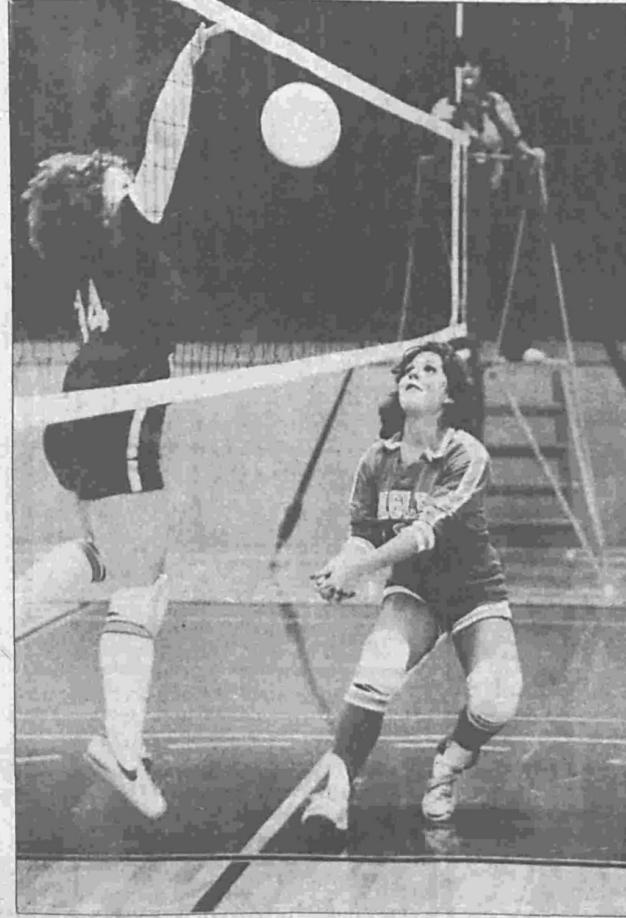

Wilson's conversion try sailed wide right.

TJ volleyballers stop Federal Way

The Thomas Jefferson Raiders remained unbeaten for the young volleyball season with a 12-15, 15-6, 15-6 win Thursday at Federal Way.

The Eagles took advantage of TJ serving problems in the first game, but the Raiders came back to win the next two in a match that both coaches — Kathy Harris of Federal Way and Nancy Thompson of Thomas Jefferson — agreed was closer than the score indicated.

Thompson said the Raiders suffered from somewhat poor court coverage despite the win.

"They didn't look as good as I think they could have," Thompson said. "But everyone seems to be hustling and doing their job."

The TJ coach singled out spikers Lisa Hackett and Peggy Halwachs for their efforts in the victory, which improved the Raiders' season mark to 5-0.

Jefferson entertains Rogers Wednesday in the final pre-league match. Puyallup visits TJ Friday in the South Puget Sound League opener.

EAGLE coach Harris saw much good play on the part of her team in the highly competitive match.

"I was really pleased with the way we played," she said. "Sooner or later we're going to come together, especially if we keep playing like this."

Harris said her inexperienced team has shown good improvement in early matches, and particularly against Thomas Jefferson.

"In bumping, setting and setting up plays we had very few mistakes," she said. "We hustled lots more this time and had better play as a team."

Harris praised setters Darci Vallala and Tina Mahar for good production in the match.

In addition to losing, some other bad luck hit the Eagles. Jane Snyder, who Harris called her "most consistent player," injured an ankle in warm-ups before the match and will be lost to the team for an undetermined amount of time.

The Eagles visit Clover Park for the final pre-season match Wednesday, and Friday open SPSL play at Lakes.

In junior varsity play Thursday, the Raiders swept the Eagles, 15-7, 15-3.

Raider golfers defeated twice

The Thomas Jefferson Raiders lost a pair of South Puget Sound League golf matches this week.

Clover Park stopped the Raiders 75-48 Tuesday, and Curtis edged TJ 56-49 Thursday.

Mark Nygren led the way against CP, carding a 39 for 15 points. Brian Myers shot a 43 for 11 points. Other Raider scorers were Terry Cash, 50 for eight; Tim Griffith, 54 for four; Lane

Gators swamp Clover Park

The Decatur Gator coach Toshiki Kamakura was happy with his entire team for its work in the win.

"All eight players showed tremendous poise and confidence in the game," Kamakura said. "I'm really pleased with our team play. Serving, spiking, setting — they all did it really well."

Decatur had little trouble in the opening game, and after substitutions in the second game allowed the Warriors to go ahead, the Gators came back to take the decisive win.

The Gators hosted Summer Friday (results unavailable at press time). Next Wednesday Decatur closes the pre-season schedule at Puyallup, and Friday the Gators visit Curtis for the South Puget Sound League counting opener.

The Renton Indians, ranked eighth in the state of Washington and first in the confines of Highline Stadium Friday night, completely overwhelmed a hapless Mt. Rainier football squad 45-0.

The Indians buried the home-town Rams under a moutainous 358 yards rushing, compared to a hard-earned 52 yards rushing for Mt. Rainier. Renton did not come out storming, however, as they fumbled away their initial possession on their own 47-yard line. The Rams could not produce a drive on the turnover, and were forced to punt the ball away, with Bryan Forsloff kicking. Forsloff did a little more than just boot the pigskin, as he lofted the ball inside the Renton 5-yard line where it was downed on the three.

Renton, however, finally awakened its potent running attack, and proceeded on a time-consuming, 97-yard drive, highlighted by the power running of Brad Gould, and the outside speed of scatsbacks Mike Moore, and Greg Hobbs. It was Moore who eventually carried the ball in from the Ram 6-yard line to put the visitors on top for good 6-0. Brian Hobi kicked the extra point for Renton as he began a busy evening's work, which saw him boot six PAT's along with a third quarter 38-yard field goal.

The Indians were not long in waiting for their second scoring opportunity of the initial period when the Rams coughed up the football on their own 10-yard line following a deep Hobi Kick-off. With a first-and-goal situation, Mt. Renton went first to Gould for four yards, before quarterback Mike Franceschina pitched to Moore again, and the senior running back busted over right tackle for another quick tally, giving Renton a 14-0 lead.

Mt. Rainier, its offense surrounded constantly by the Indian defense, could not move the ball early in the second quarter and quick-kicked to Renton from their own twenty-three, giving the visitors possession on the Ram 34-yard line.

From there, the Indians used only six plays and a 31-yard scoring pass from Franceschina to Hobbs to put the highly-touted Indians into a commanding 21-0 lead.

It was only two minutes later, however, and the greased hands of the Mt. Rainier backfield for a 6-yard loss, and administered another costly fumble that was gobbled in by Gould at the Ram 24-yard line. Three minutes and six plays later, with Gould carrying for 16-yards on the drive, Mike Moore took the final hand-off and drove over left tackle to hit paydirt: and send Renton on top at half, 28-0.

The Rams finally got things rolling their third quarter field-way following the second half kick-off as quarterback Craig Maley rifled an 18-yard pass to Dave Rob Riddle to Gary Tronson to give Mt. Renton a first down at covered 18 yards their own thirty-six, following a Mt. The drive stalled Rainier punt.

there, however, as Maley was dropped for a 6-yard loss, and then was picked off by Doug Kline at the Renton forty-nine.

Renton was again lightening-quick to capitalize on the Des Moines club's fourth fumble of the evening as Hobbsraced 49-yards around end to sting the Rams, and send the Indians lead to 35-0. Renton finished out the evening's scoring with Hobi's third quarter field-goal, and an early fourth quarter touchdown pass from Maley rifled an 18-yard pass to Dave Rob Riddle to Gary Tronson to give Mt. Renton a first down at covered 18 yards their own thirty-six, following a Mt. The drive stalled Rainier punt.

There They Go!

by Ben Mitchell

Records are made to be broken! No less than six new ones are now inscribed in the record book at Longacres.

They are: the longest racing season, 110 days; an increased mutuel handle; new daily average and total attendance records; two riding records by Danny Sorenson as an apprentice rider and over-all winning record; and the new Longacres $100,000 added MILE run in 1:33-3/5 by import Always Gallant. Old record 1:34.

In selecting the following equine stars of the meet your reporter consulted with a baker's dozen trainers, riders and owners who collectively represent 18 years of Thoroughbred racing experience. The consensus follows:

Horse of the Meet, Lotto Canada (Briar Rose, a close second); Washington-bred of the Meet, Lotto Canada; Best Handicap Horse, Always Gallant (an import); Best Sprinter, My Runaway; Best Race, Longacres Mile - winner Always Galant; Top older gelding/colt, Always Gallant; Top three-year-old colt/gelding, Trooper Seven; Top two-year-old colt/gelding, Lotto

Canada; Top older filly/mare, Briar Rose; Top three-year-old filly, Briar Rose; Top two-year-old filly, Havadasher; Top placer (claiming horse), Ad In; Top apprentice rider (new record), Danny Sorenson; Top meet jockey (new record), Danny Sorenson; Top trainer (new record), Martin Kenney; Steve O'Donnell Memorial Training Award, Gene Zeren.

Two records will probably stand for many years: Danny Sorenson's winners' record and the Longacres Mile at 1:33-3/5. Those will be hard to beat. That's 30 for 1979.

Mariners to operate West Haven AA farm

The Seattle Mariners have entered into a two-year working agreement with West Haven, Conn., of the Class Double A Eastern League, director of player development Hal Keller announced.

With the addition of the Double A affiliate, the Seattle minor league system has a club at each classification for the first time. In 1979, the Mariners had two Class A teams. West Haven replaces Class A-Alexandria, Va. (Carolina League).

The minor league lineup now includes Triple A-Spokane (Pacific Coast), Double A-West Haven (Eastern), Class A-San Jose (California) and Rookie-Bellingham, Wash. (Northwest)

The third season of existence has been the most successful for the Seattle Mariners major league club as well as the minor league organization. The 1979 minor league win percentage stands at .549, up from .473 a year ago.

The '79 season also saw a number of firsts within the minor league organization, including two players who had been brought up through the system, and who made their first appearances on the major league club this fall: pitcher Jim Lewis, and outfielder Rodney Craig. Craig hit safely in his first seven games in the major leagues, the best start ever by a player in a Mariner uniform. Both Craig and Lewis were brought to Seattle for the month of September.

The Mariners' Class A San Jose Missions captured the California League championship on Sept. 7. This is basically the same group of players that formed the nucleus of the teams that won the Northwest League championship in 1977, and also won the Arizona Instructional League title in 1978.

The minor league All-Star teams named at mid-season included a number of Mariner organization players.

The California League All-Star team included Dave Henderson, Miguel Negron and Ron McGee, with Honorable Mentions going to Dave Edler, Orlando Mercado, Al Weston, Dave Smith and Doug Smith. The Alexandria Mariners were represented on the Carolina League All-Star team by pitcher Bryan Clark. In the Northwest League All-Star team, Ramon Estepa was the representative from the Bellingham Mariners.

BONNIE NYGREN of Thomas Jefferson readies for a return Thursday in her match with Renee Fahm of Decatur. Fahm won, 6-4, 6-1. The Raiders and Gators finished only three matches of the scheduled five when the rains came. The match will be completed this week. TJ leads the match, 2-1.

Plan may save White R. salmon

The spawning run of White River spring chinook will be saved if a plan recently set into motion succeeds. The White River spring chinook make up the last remaining wild-stock spring chinook run in southern Puget Sound. That run, which once boasted of several thousand fish, now includes only about 100 chinook each year. In a recent meeting, officials from the Washington Department of Fisheries and Game, Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, as well as representatives of the Muckleshoot and Puyallup tribes discussed the White River spring chinook run. Bill Young, a Fisheries biologist who attended the meeting, said everyone agreed that the run has reached dangerously low levels and that something must be done immediately to protect the stock from further reduction. As part of the resulting plan to save the run, biologists from the Washington Department of Fisheries collected most of this year's chinook from the White River to begin an egg bank. The hatched eggs will be reared at Minter Creek Salmon Hatchery and then released from Hupp Springs Salmon Hatchery

Few words after Gators whipped

by Pat Jenkins
Not a lot could be said by Greg Flynn on the subject of his Decatur Gators' prep football performance Friday night.

But the scoreboard at Puyallup's Sparks Stadium said plenty in its final accounting: the host Vikings 39, Decatur 6. Another loss to go along with three others this season, giving the Gators an 0-4 record in the South Puget Sound League.

Little went right for the losers. They were plagued by mistakes in the form of repeated fumbled exchanges between the center and the quarterbacks, five turnovers (three fumbles and two interceptions), and missed tackles and other defensive slips.

"There isn't much you can say," Flynn said. Then, glancing at the scoreboard, he added, "That's about the right score. They're that much better than us. Of course, they played a lot of reserves in the second half."

Puyallup's substitutes did, indeed, take over after the Vikings took a 39-0 cushion into halftime. COACH JERRY REDMOND'S backups were in the fray when Decatur avoided a shutout with its second touchdown of the season, a six-yard burst into the end zone standing up by Randy Moen with 5:52 left in the game.

That capped a drive that included a 25-yard gallop by Moen, the longest play from scrimmage for his team, and a 15-yarder by Mike Hagen to Puyallup's six-yard line.

There was little else offense generated by the Gators, who finished 88 yards in the black—44 passing and 41 rushing. The latter category was depleted by losses totalling 49 yards.

Beginning in the first quarter and continuing through their first rushing attempt in the third period, the Gators lost ground on nine successive plays. Flynn probably didn't like admitting it, since in a pre-game analysis he said his charges were unafraid of the unbeaten (4-0) Vikings, but "we were a little intimidated by Puyallup," he said.

"They're a very physical team." Puyallup is also explosive, as evidenced by the 32 points it scored in the second quarter.

AHEAD 7-0 after the first quarter by virtue of Mike Caine's nifty 11-yard scoring run, the Vikings wasted little time swelling their margin. Two touchdowns in the first 43 seconds of a quarter ill do that for a team.

Caine's burrowing four-yard effort up the middle on the first play of the second chapter got the first six-pointer, and quarterback Todd Westby's 22-yard pass to Gene Bowen netted the second. Rick Jenkins' ball-stripping tackle of a Decatur kickoff returner set up the Westby-to-Bowen aerial.

Now 20-0 with 11:17 left until intermission, the count grew again with 7:33 to go when defensive back Brian Susee intercepted Decatur quarterback Greg Andral's short pass and returned it 20 yards for a TD.

And again when Brian Templin ran back a punt 57 yards for six with 6:15 remaining.

And again when Westby, on a fake punt from the Decatur 35, led Greg Hammermaster perfectly with a pass into the end zone as the first half expired.

DECATUR'S DEFENDERS, inspired to better things by the lopsided deficit, were less porous in the second half, although their improved performance was mostly at the expense of Puyallup's reserves.

Still, Mike Mitchell blocked a Puyallup punt and recovered a fumble, fellow lineman Mike Pressnall snaffled another Viking fumble, and the Gators stopped their foes when necessary to keep them out of scoring range.

But, obviously, all was not well for Flynn and company. "We didn't play very well," Flynn said. "We didn't look like we were very well-coached, that's for sure."

"We have to go back to the drawing board. We can play better than this. This is a good bunch of kids. They try hard," he said.

Hazenspikes Rams

The Mt. Rainier Rams started slow and ended up hot, but it was not enough Thursday as Hazen took a 15-0, 15-13 volleyball victory.

"We got off to the worst possible start you could have," Mt. Rainier coach Neil Hutchinson said. "But we proved we could come back. That's the important thing."

Hutchinson said the Rams had inexperienced players at some positions, which hurt in this, just the second match of the season. But he said the "whole team played well the second game" of the match.

The coach had good words for the play of spiker Denise Hendricks and setter Kristi Rasmussen for their second game work.

The Rams open North Puget Sound League play Tuesday when they host Auburn in a 3:30 p.m. contest.

Last Time in 79!
Learn to read faster
 Teenagers and adults can invest $66 in a program that makes reading and homework go more quickly.
 The Institute for Reading, Education and Development (I-READ), in co-operation with the Highline YMCA, is offering a seven session Speed Reading course beginning Tuesday, October 2.
 Mark van Gelderen, one of the designers of the program, says teenagers usually enter the class reading about 200 words a minute. They often finish six weeks later reading 1,000 words a minute. And Van Gelderen says the students progress from seventh grade levels to college reading and learning levels. Thousands of adults have shown similar gains.
 In fact a recent study ordered by the Pierce County Commissioners showed that the average student taking the I-READ course improved the equivalent of four (4) years schooling in one month. Van Gelderen pointed out that no commercial or public program can show equivalent results.
 The class for teens, between 12 and 16 years old, will be offered weekly on Tuesdays from 4:00 to 8:00 PM. A similar program for adults over 16 is on the same days from 6:30 to 8:30 PM. The cost is $74 which includes all materials. However, the YMCA is allowing those who register before September 29, to receive a $5 discount. The Highline YMCA is located at 17874 Dee Moines Way So.
 For more information, call I-READ at 722-7335. The teenage program is a unique opportunity to supplement your child's education. Parents are encouraged to attend the first session. This program is so different and successful that the City of Seattle, King County, and Pierce County have been using it to improve the reading and educational skills of their Manpower program enrollees. The first lesson is free to those wanting to inspect the program.
 I-READ's workshops are also given to the employees of many local organizations, including hospitals, government agencies, other colleges, and the military.
 Call I-READ, day or night, at 722-7335 for more information and a free newsletter.
