Shot law may out 750 FW school kids

in Karen Leoni

The Seattle-King County Health Department has ordered that about 750 Federal Way elementary students be excluded from school because their parents have failed to comply with the state’s new immunization law. A school district spokesman was quoted Monday.

The school district spokesman said the parents of children who have not had all the required immunizations have been notified by the health department, and that the school administration has been sending follow-up notices through the mail.

The law, passed by the Legislature early this year, requires that all school children get shots to protect against tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough, polio, Rubella, strep and meningitis.

Health officials, who are also sending local elementary schools the list of details the mandated shots will be allowed to attend. The deadlines are not specified.

At Aberdeen, enrollment figures will be verified Nov. 27. At Algoma and Central, the office is asking parents to call.

The other issue is children in a classroom with someone who has the disease. She said she is not sure what to do about that.

Administrative Assistant Paul Chaplin, who is overseeing the program, said at the time that all of the parents had been notified.

He said he was told that had the law been in place six years ago, the flu shots would have been given and the number of people would have been greatly curtailed.

Walker said that the law is not as good as it could be.

"I want to prove chivalry is alive and kicking," he said. "I say go ahead and kick me, but I'll still stand up and resist.

"You all think twice before you say something like that," he added.

The couple then took a picture as they rode down the street on a white horse.

Chivalry comes alive!

When Karen Loomis awoke to the sounds of medieval trumpeting, she wondered what in the world was going on.

She peeked out the window and saw numerous cars parked outside, but somehow her sleepy vision missed the people standing in her yard. She had no idea the fuss was over her until she walked into the living room and saw her boyfriend of seven years dressed in armor on a fiery steed. There were lots of people standing around him, but the three that stood out in the crowd were medieval dressed, two holding trumpets, the third holding a blue satin pillow.

As she came outside, her stunned face broke into a smile, then a laugh. "What are you doing?" she asked, as her knight in shining armor, Curt Walker, got down on one knee. "Will you marry me?" he asked. "Yes," she said, still laughing, but now there were tears in her eyes. Though she was not a damsel in distress, her knight had come to save her.

Karen Loomis couldn't believe her eyes.

THE MEDIEVAL couple plan to follow through with the theme in their wedding in August.

Swamp project won’t bog down from no area support

After countless hours of work for the state, the Morses couple have formulated a plan to develop a Nature Center on 200 acres surrounding, including access to the wetlands.

Francis Marckx said that he is asking for a commitment from both himself and the Hylebos and Recreation Commissions. Those attending the meeting described why that should be done.

They said the need for those kinds of lands close to urban areas, "We're not going to support that kind of project because of what they termed possible "budget restrictions" due to the recent passage of Initiative 88, the tax that restricts state spending to growth in personal income.

As we bow our heads in thanks today, more South King County residents probably will do so in church than have in the past several years.

For that, local ministers are thankful.

There appears to be a mounting trend toward churchgoing in the area as the "3rd draw is a close. It's need to belonging to organized religion. Although the growth in area churches has not been over-whelming, an increasing number of people expect the trend to con-tinue.

"There is a resurgence of Wayside United Church of Christ in Federal Way. The church attendance is now more frequent and involves people who come from broken mar­riages or are uncomfortable in a church setting," said Rev. Arnold said.

"There's a real response to those problems," he said. "We are trying to do things differently in ways that will help people who come from broken mar­riages and counseling for individuals and group counseling in an atmosphere where you would find love. That's love. That's crisis energy. That's love."

"And apparently the people feel the need to belong to organized religion. Although the growth in area churches has not been over-whelming, an increasing number of people expect the trend to con-tinue."

"Basically the church is the North American people's second in­stution. We have the lowest percent of people who do not belong to the church," said Dr. William Ritchey of Deans United Methodist Church. "There's a real need for religion in America."

A followup approach to the current administration, John D. Ray, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has been announced by Darrell Himmelreich, King County Executive acquired Governor Gorton's official support for any leadership during this threyear period. This compliance that does the state back and created the problems for the past several weeks. However, Spellman channeled a convention of the Washington School Directors Association (WSSDA) and the Federal Way School Board of Directors to announce his plans to unseat Ray.

The endorsement resulted from a student dissatisfaction with students, they said, not only what the issues are that (Washington Public Power Supply Systems) is a candidate for governor for the "80s," will be "the only candidate with the best choice."

Student leaders from around the state endorsed King County Executive John Spellman to be the governor for that trip. Attend­

Evergreen school
A schoolhouse that feels like a home

Clustered around tables, 15 first and second graders, their heads bent over their work, tried to form letters to perfection.

Their teacher, a tall and gentle blond woman, stopped at each desk, helping the tiny hands form words that would eventually transfer ideas to paper.

The six-foot windows, each cut in geometric shapes to stimulate interest in forms, lit up the room that had once been part of a single-family dwelling. The walls were covered with the usual drawings, letters and numbers that are typical of many school classrooms.

Outside, within the two acres of fenced property, a pony called Dusty, the children's "big dog," nibbled on the grass. His bridle and saddle were bung providing a home-like situation for children whose parents both work.

"We're like a nuclear family," said Jim Gauthier, administrator and business manager who joined the school with experience as a psychiatric social worker. "These kids don't just go home and play with friends in their neighborhood. They're here for many hours a day."

Gauthier, a friendly man with an obvious interest in children, said students are often dropped off prior to school at the Trike Set Pre-School, also owned by school owner Dr. Jim Mischel, a Federal Way dentist. Students are then bused to Pine Meadow for a half-day of activities that include a full schedule of education, swimming, ballet and sports.

Emphasizing team sports, 21 children are currently active on a co-ed soccer league sponsored by the Federal Way Boys' and Girls' Club. Competing against eight teams, they are now in the championship play-offs and need only three more games to come out on top.

The school, open to youngsters in grades one through six, stresses eclectic methods, "the best of all educational systems," said Gauthier including the individualized Montessori techniques.

Certified teachers, Kathy Wolfe from Auburn and Chris Laurenzo from Federal Way have class loads of 15 children each so that students can be given individual attention and progress at their own rate.

"We get some referrals for children who are unable to adjust to the 31-student class size in public schools, but most children have come up through the ranks of the Trike Set on South 248th and Military Road."

The school was started when owner Mischel responded to the needs of working parents who were concerned about putting their children into the public school system.

Mischel purchased the residence and converted it to school by converting a garage into a classroom and preparing an apartment for a custodian to maintain security.

Mischel, who does most of the handiwork himself has walled in the swimming pool and put in the floor for a sizable room that will be used for classrooms and a gym. A basketball court is planned for an outdoor corner of the yard, said Gauthier.

Though most school doors close first week in June, this one stays open for 12 months a year.

During the summer, school concepts are reinforced with an emphasis on spelling and math drills and creativity.

Teachers expand on topics such as government with trips to Olympia, a talk with a legislator or lessons on the election process. They may also become involved in the problems of ecology by talking to rangers, analyzing water samples, picking up litter or discussing the costs for a clean-up detail.

Are administrators looking toward greater expansion? Gauthier said no, they are already working with a maximum number. "Our aim is to keep it small. If you grow too much, you lose that sense of closeness you need for communication."

The spokesman, a representative of the guard's Seattle office, said the rescue boat was 45 minutes away at the scene of last week's kyak accident.

"We did what we could, and we always try to do everything to help people in distress," he said. "Our policy is to use the closest resource in a situation like this."

Asked if coast guard helicopters might have gotten to the area more quickly, the spokesman replied that because of the location of the 'copter bases, it would have taken at least an hour and a half. And obviously we can't have coast guard stations everywhere in miles along the coast," he said.

A recent survey of gasoline stations in Washington state indicates that gasoline supplies could become tight. Survey results show Washington Auto Club members that gasoline will be harder to find over the Thanksgiving holiday period. The supply problem is expected to hit hardest in the Seattle area, but motorists throughout the state should expect to encounter spot shortages of fuel during the four day holiday. However, such shortages will be scattered and should not cause serious problems for motorists looking for gasoline. Individual averages are as follows: Aberdeen, $1.02 for regular; Bellingham, $1.02 for regular; Everett, $1.01 for regular; Fortunetown, $1.03 for premium and $1.05 for unleaded; Ingham, $1.04 for regular; Lakewood, $1.03 for premium and $1.07 for unleaded; Olym- phia, $1.03 for regular; Pendleton, $1.04 for regular; Pullman, $1.04 for regular; Yakima, $1.03 for regular; and Yakima, $1.05 for regular and $1.08 for unleaded.

Frosh takes 2 state titles

Erica Nordean swims for higher goals

by Harry Brooks

Erica Nordean won two championship events at the State Girls’ Swim Meet last Saturday and, although she had been familiar with the trimmep, considers them as a step toward achieving a goal.

With strong finishes in both events at the University of Washington’s Hec Edmundson Pool, the Mt. Rainier High School frosh is the state champion in the 50-yard freestyle and also took third place in the 100-yard backstroke.

Her winning time in the 100 yard was .50 of a second, gaining the qualifying standard for the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles, and she will be a possible candidate for that program in 1984 if she continues at her present level.

Erica is getting better every time she goes in the pool. She’s got the ability to handle it. I’ve seen her improvement. She only turned 13 two months ago and has three more seasons of high school swimming ahead of her. She is a ninth-grader at Pacific Junior High but swims for the Mt. Rainier Bluejackets.

Erica is the first Mt. Rainier High swimmer for the Mt. Rainier High swim team to ever participate in a state championship swim meet for the Mt. Rainier Highswim team that, she will be competing against approximately 120 other athletes for three spots on the U.S. junior world relay squad.

Young and talented gymnymes make Decatur a contender

by Harry Brooks

Gymnastics coach Melanie Brigham brings her All-Star squad to be a contender in the coming season.

Last year, Decatur's 16 mm color film, "Inches and Jinxes," was made to entertain and fund for the then South Puget Sound League, but in the 1979-80 team may be stronger yet.

"We could do better," analyzed Brigham, who enters her third year as Coast Gymnastics. "I wouldn't be surprised if we were 10th or 15th in the league this year. We should be pretty strong, maybe out of the running but as the season progresses.

Brigham noted that much of the season's success will rest on the development of a large sophomore contingent "with potential."

"We have 11 sophomores out," she said. "They have talent, but I can't promise any specific events yet because we're still using our equipment.

"We should be strong in the floor exercise, and the other events should come on in the latter," she said. "We only have one all-around performer now (White), but we have plenty of people who are able to do well on the other events.

"I'm hoping to have a strong team this winter. Dye and Dike are floor performers and will help. Smith is an uneven bar specialist, and Purner will score points on the bars and vault.

"We hope to have a good team by next season. Our age group will have improved.

"Several of the gymnasts have been away this week, but we hope to see them at practice Monday.

"I see great potential in this team. Each day, for 5 consecutive days Mon. thru. Fri. we will be conducting our Nov. 26th at the HIghline YMCA 17874 Des Moines Wy. So.

Watch out, SPBL, here comes the buzz. Gary Brines, former basketball team at Federal Way High.

"We’re not going to be too bad," he indicated. "We’re going to be extremely strong."

Referring to the South Puget Sound League’s allotment of four West Central District Tournament ports for the coming season, Brines added, "I’m optimistic we’ll get one of those."

If Federal Way’s coaches will be as strong in the league as in winning and shooting from the pressmen, "he noted.

After taking second in the State AAA Tournament two years ago, the Eagles settled for a 9-8 SPSL record last season. Down the stretch they beat front-runners Rogers, Jefferson and Rainier.

Four boogeymen, who were starting berthies in one time or another last season, return to the Eagle nest for another campaign. Brines talks about the return of Scott Loucks, a for¬ ward, and 6-foot senior center Mike Elliott. Loucks averaged 13 points per game last season and is ex¬ pected to be a much bigger scorer this year. "He’s the one who Brines pinned as the head post man in the league," said a 40 percent shooting average, sec¬ ond to the West’s 48 percent last season, while working in a 7.8 average. He also was 46th among SPBL re¬ cords last year with 7.5 per game.

Further rebuilding support is added by strong seniors Mike Brunnman, a 6-4 returning letterman, and Greg Borchers and 6-2 junior John McEwan. All are fighting for an open high post spot.

A returning veteran, Joe Syring, a 6-7 transfer from Sammamish, will be a starting inside per¬ fomer during his senior season.

Returning starter Dan Weidman, who was second in SPBL assists with 3.4 a point last season, will team with junior backcourt, Seniors John Tate and Mach¬ tenbergs are fighting for a backup spot in backcourt. Seniors Ray Syring and Mitch

Smashers host volley clinic December 8th

If your volleyball team is looking to improve, the Seattle Smashers have something for you. Details of a volleyball clinic for December 8th at Renton High School will be shared with the team. The clinic will cover various aspects of volleyball, including techniques that will help improve your team's overall performance. For more information, register by Nov. 30.

The clinic will include nine hours of instruction and practice on basic volleyball techniques, team offense, and team defense. The clinic will be held on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m., with sessions beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 12 p.m. There will be breaks for lunch, dinner, and practice. All participants must register at least seven days prior to the clinic. To register, call 360-916-1183.

Bank robberies soar: $1,000 reward for unmasking bandits

The incidence of bank robbery has increased alarmingly in Federal Way and elsewhere throughout the state, and in response, two banking organizations have mounted an advertising campaign to entice those who have information leading to an arrest for money out of the Federal Way area. Only two bank robberies were reported in Federal Way last year, but these cases, an increase of 200 percent.

In one of these episodes, the robbers acted in an off-noon bank, and both were later captured by county officers.

Walter Wieden, spokesperson for the two groups, said that the banks are being attacked more frequently during the year, and that the rewards are given only when individuals come forward with information to identify the robbers.

The bank robbery problem is widespread throughout the state, and in other parts of the country.

Food bank seeks referrals

The South King County Multiple Services organization is now accepting referrals from community organizations that are looking for new sources of help for families who need additional food. The South King County Multiple Services organization is a non-profit organization that helps people in need of food by providing them with food banks.

Program focuses on sculpture

A program on sculpture and its role in art history will be presented by international-­ knowing artist Donald Zavala at the Des Moines Public Library, 210 W. 22nd Ave., on November 22, at 7:30 p.m.

The free slide-tutorial program, entitled "About Sculpture," will focus on the large-scale, publicly-funded projects that have been created in the Seattle area and Hungary.

Zavala will illustrate examples of the audiences interested in art history and the sculptural art forms of the ancient civilizations.

"Our team at the Southcenter store is looking forward to working with Sandy Thews in his new role as store manager," said John Miller, Nordstrom's senior vice president of operations. "Sandy has a wealth of experience in the retail industry, and we are confident that he will continue to lead our team in delivering an exceptional customer experience."
Vets and Widows benefit from VA

After the veteran’s purchase, the VA provides a certificate that summarizes the details of the loan. The veteran may use this certificate to verify the terms of the loan to the lender at any time. This certificate is called the Certificate of Eligibility (COE).

do the work and he gives credit to the people who were eligible. Only those who have served in the military for at least 91 days during a period of war or after September 10, 2001, are eligible for a VA loan.

For example, a veteran who bought a home for $150,000 may use his VA loan to get a 10% down payment, which would be $15,000. This is called a “substitution of the down payment.”

The veteran must make his first monthly payment within 30 days of closing. If the veteran does not make his first payment on time, the VA can foreclose on the property.

The veteran who bought from a VA lender must follow all VA regulations. These regulations are designed to protect the veteran and the lender. The veteran must make his payments on time and keep the property in good condition.

The VA loan is a fixed-rate mortgage, which means that the interest rate will not change. The interest rate will be determined at the time of closing. The veteran may choose to get a VA loan with a fixed interest rate or a VA loan with an adjustable interest rate.

The Modern Mom

by Betty McCloskey

My most perplexing momentous conference was the corners of the house are mine. It is at such times, left to my own devices and without distractions, that I take a thoughtful look at my world. I am thankful for that world, and I can be thankful in many ways.

I can be thankful for the friends that have become family, for the children, for the Church, and for the freedoms that we enjoy.

I can be thankful for the fact that the Pilgrims landed where they did, not in the open desert, but in Virginia. They were there for their children. They landed in the open at New Plymouth, England, and the history of the world's heritages are due to the fact that they went to the open. They had the freedom and the need to work for what they wanted.
