Federal Way sails into cityhood

By KURT BERROD

Tom Jennings has invested a lot of time in Federal Way. And although he no longer lives there permanently, he is a former cityhood activist and has worked with it for 23 years. So it's time to move on, he said, and about what the future may hold for Federal Way — whether it is a city or a town. "I'd like to get it set and just plan to move away before the incorporation election this fall," Jennings said.

However, his business, cityhood activist Ros Jennings moved to an idyllic lake before they announced about what the future of Federal Way could be. Jennings has been involved in the movement for years, and he's glad it's happening while he's here, Jennings said.

After returning, Jennings said he was surprised to see the level of support for the movement in traffic and development. "I was shocked to see the interest in the traffic," Jennings said.

It's possible that they move there sometime.

Dash Point Dock should be saved

T he Metropolitan Park District of Tacoma, the dock at Dash Point Park is only a line item in a budget, bought to mean more to the Dash Point residents, who braved the weather Sunday to "decide its future" in the creeping budget crisis, and many of their neighbors — recall more than 30 dock dinner held at the site over the past 70 years. They saw memory of moonlight stroll, kids doing silly tricks, or holding up a skillet. It is the more than a mere feature. It has become part of the fabric of a community that has a deep sense of history. Over these years of salty fun, the dock has gradually been eroded, the rerun in its content and function. While it remains, it must be rehabilitated that future generations are used to. It is a demonstration of dedication to that task. The dock is one of the various projects next year. One estimate possible cost is $350,000.

For 73 years of swimming and fishing, seven decades of pleasure on a body of water larger than 600 acres to provide a distinctive and useful facility to the community.

We, as its many users, in and out of Dash Point, will tell their voices to the discussion. Call the park district at 477-6300, or come to a dock dinner.

In only 20 years, you could help to bring decades of delight to future generations.

In the 20 years we have lived in Federal Way, I have considered the fact that it is just as much a part of our lives as it is of the community. I have considered it as an extension of our community. I have considered it as an extension of the community, which is not always pleasant.

There is no doubt that the improvements have come in the form of increased traffic, increased noise, increased all-weather conditions. But there is no doubt that the improvements have come at a cost. There is no doubt that the improvements have come at a cost to the people who live in the area, both in and out of the area. And there is no doubt that the improvements have come at a cost to the environment.

In the 20 years we have lived in Federal Way, the changes have been significant. We have seen the growth of the city, the growth of the population, the growth of the businesses.

The changes have come with a cost. There is no doubt about that.

Young man arrested for attempted kidnappings

A man who was reported to King County police for following a woman to an Auburn motel for two days, and then following her to and from Lake 306th Street and First Avenue West. She said the man had been watching her, then following her to come home. When a friend arrived 90 minutes later, he called the police and the man walked away. The family told police it does not know the man, and knows of no reason why he would want to bother the girl.

Aging America requires ongoing source of income

By WENDY CULVERWELL

When the powers-that-be — Gov. Booth Gardner and Mayor Charles Royer — declared this week a "Weekly the Older Worker Week," they probably didn't have Robert Lervold in mind.

The 57-year-old, semi-retired furniture salesman just passed his first anniversary as a Federal STRAFFORD senior citizen. His clients, who work in the service industries such as fast food and telemarketing, come not just from Seattle but also from other metro areas who are seeking to support that are starting their own businesses.

"We have to have a lower turnover rate in their jobs, that's just the way it is," Peterson said. "There are only so much money set aside for retirement programs or the fired executive — often referred to lists which claim, 'Employ the Older Worker.'"

Senior Citizens can be reached at 859-1818. Employ the Older Worker Week lasts through March 15.

Robert Lervold

employers consider hiring older workers.

"However, in these days of increased productivity and expectations, many of those jobs have been trimmed, leaving older and younger workers alike to compete for what's left. New jobs in the economy are generating up the ranks to mid- or upper-level management. Many of those positions may be perceived as less desirable by some employers, however, is not the ideal illustration for 'Employ the Older Worker.'"

"People in Lervold's age group, those who've retired or are about to retire, they probably have their job with a current employer," Peterson said. "It's a lower income, and to them, a job at McDonald's would only be a job at McDonald's. It's not the housewife who has to support them. It's the homeowner who has to support their family. A job at McDonald's is not a job at McDonald's. It's the housewife who has to support the family. A job at McDonald's is a job at McDonald's. It's not the housewife who has to support the family. A job at McDonald's is a job at McDonald's."
Now that it's getting close to spring, all you vegetable gardeners had better get going on your cool season crops. Peas, carrots, cabbage and lettuce can go in the garden along with sweet peas and nasturtium sets and kale.

Plant sweet peas and nasturtium sets and kale in April. You have permission from the ranger station to grab a shovel and snatch rhodies out of the forest. The wild rhododendrons are easy to adapt well to civilization and make wonderfully blooming hedges and borders when given partial shade and acid soil. Add good manure to make sure your soil is acid.

You cannot, however, just go about and snatch rhodies from the wild, you need a rhododendron permit from the ranger station. Look at your cool season crops. Peas, carrots, cabbage and lettuce.

How about some potted plants for the garden? You have the greatest of easy. I've often moved a rhody in full bloom without losing a petal. Put your irises and tulips bulb from June until frost, most perennial nurseries put their prize for only a few dollars. The rest of the summer we will see for them. You will plant the bulbs and put the perennial plant every two years to keep it blooming at its best. Another floral area that is blooming for the loveliest there is that the blooming time for most perennial plants is every year.

Q. Our problem is our neighbor's dog! The dumbest dog will learn new habits. If you can catch the little b @t in the act, spray with cold water from the hose or it will escape with a Frisbee.

Don't get too excited and set off work your cool season crops. Peas, carrots, cabbage and lettuce can go in the garden along with sweet peas and nasturtium sets and kale.

Federal Way sweeps state foes

Four of these teams are headed to the Far West Regionals in Pleasanton, Calif., in June.

The Silver Bullets, a boys' U-12 team, the Star Shooters, a girls' U-12 team, the Storm, a girls' U-14 team, and the Nitro, a boys' U-19 team, are all headed south following their state titles. The Flyers, a boys' U-13 team, won the state title but only U-12, U-14, U-16 and U-19 teams qualify to regionals.

The Silver Bullets, coached by Jerry Capodanno, won their state title. See page B-6 for further details.

The Star Shooters, coached by Steve Manderville, earned the berth to the regionals by defeating the F.O. Lions, 2-1. See page 3-A for further details.

The Storm, coached by Mary Baumgardt, whipped the Lake Washington Footloose, 7-0. See page B-3.

The Nitro, coached by Tim Duffy, edged The Highline News, 3-2, in a shootout. See page B-3.

The Flyers, coached by Dan Kaiser, came back to defeat the Columbia Blast, 2-1. See page B-6.

Nitro outlasts News in shootout

By CHUCK MUNGER

The team nobody expected to be there at the end came out on top at the University of Washington in April. Senior goalkeeper Kenny Klein, who deflected a shot into the goalpost and Ditmore was right there for the rebound, scored for the Nitro a lead in the 4th minute of play.

Brittingham welcomed as club's program director

Shelley Brittingham

Brittingham grew up in the Seattle area and attended the University of Washington, where she earned a degree in physical education with an emphasis in dance.

Brittingham moved to New York City after graduating with the class of 1984 to pursue a career as a dance director. She started out teaching and then moved to the YWCA in New York and then also went on to program and administrative work. The show business aspect in those areas, the more she enjoyed. Brittingham said.

When Brittingham moved back to the Seattle area in 1987, she worked as the program director for the Girls Club of Puget Sound and worked with girls in the community. She also worked with the Girls Club of Puget Sound and worked with girls in the community. She also worked with the Girls Club of Puget Sound and worked with girls in the community.

One of the reasons Brittingham moved back to Seattle is that she found it a much bigger club and was able to get the job and get involved in the community. She said, "It's a much bigger club and there's more room growing opportunities in terms of programming."

Brittingham will be responsible for the programs in music, arts, enrichment, personal development, citizenship and leadership, and social responsibility. She said, "I'm going to be focusing on all programs except health and physical education."
