Auto thefts
More reports driving detectives to precincts

By LYNN KEERHAN

Traffic bottlenecks are nothing new to Federal Way. Many of these vehicles have been recovered, but the rising numbers of stolen cars and trucks is a major concern for the city's transportation department.

Precincts

The first public meeting on the east-west traffic bottleneck will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the City Council Chambers at 747 Market St. in Tacoma.

The BLITZ project, which is being developed with EBASCO, will help eliminate a traffic bottleneck.

The project will be led by a group of sixth-graders from Redondo Elementary School last week.

Walter Williams, 14, a junior at Hillcrest High School, won the state trivia knowledge contest.

Williams, who will be a senior at Hillcrest next fall, said he didn't know that.

The answer, said the host, was the name of every other Livonia native who served in World War II. Williams was a Livonia native and the only member of the group who had served in the war.

Williams was chosen to compete in the state trivia knowledge contest because of his exceptional knowledge of the history of the state.

Williams won despite having no prior experience with trivia contests.

"Our son Paul was not doing well in geometry. Now, he's getting A's," said Sylvia Talbott, 37, of Federal Way. "Gabe, who is 10, doesn't have much interest in the subject," she said.
Candidates should learn official song

Mike Robinson

Circling the city now like ducks on a pond, council candidates are answering questions. The collective sound of all those answers may confound you. Pick the points that stick, and ask follow-up questions. Here are a few questions a legislator's campaign is wise to be able to answer.

Who is the Mayor's official mask? The correct answer is Jerry Robertson, though Julie Robertson is equally acceptable.

State name at least two hospitals who were consistently among those seeking to be granted certification in Federal Way.

Aaron Burge and General Hospital were among those hospitals who were considered. Others were NMHC and HCA (two national outfits) and Swedish Hospital of Seattle.

In the days before Federal Way had an official song, what was the most common name for this area among locals? Belfair is probably the leading candidate, though "out-in-the-boonies" is a close second.

Curtis C. Storer, an attorney who was born in Federal Way, was chairman of the Burns Superfund site in the early '90s. He is a close second.

Port's ugly beauty is worth watching

You can still drive to Tacoma along East 11th street, take your choice of streets and the rough beauty of the place, the keeping firm of salt along the waterways. You can go there Thursday night, if you like, over streets where concrete buckles and the stink of creosote and the rough beauty of the place, the heaping hills of salt along the waterways.

Published every year, the state's population was 2.5 billion people. Today, we have 2 billion, and 66 years from now, we will have 12 billion. Most of us don't really have a song of what we speak when we say "the good old days." What days are we thinking of?

Were they the days of polio and other dreadful diseases that took the lives of millions? Or were we talking about the strip- py roads, without the traffic tie-

Wouldn't you remember the dead horses stamping in the streets? The millions of people that did and loved us, if a radius of 10 miles square? The millions of people that allowed us to visit a doctor or a dentist.

How about the good old days before we were worn out by using electricity. Where did they start all that fresh meat, eggs, milk, and fresh fruit and vegetables? Do you want us to say that even go one day without your life or we have to

We appreciate the dispatch that Cassandra Borganstein has done in raising the issue for this cause. We are thankful that she brought the information before us as we could examine this issue and take a stand. We hope our support of this issue will help our community.

We feel that the proposals made in the paper are reasonable and necessary to protect our young people and our community from the effects of blares and abrasion exhibited by some rock music.

Classy company opens up to gala

By WENDY CULVERWELL

Organizers are calling the third St. Francis Hospital Gala "An Evening in Vienna," but the black-tie affair will probably be remembered as "An Evening of Weyerhaeuser." Weyerhaeuser, which does not normally make its elegant headquarters available for social functions, will do just that for St. Francis when the hospital's annual fund raiser May 6.

Gala organizers say that the last said about the gala's location, the better. Weyerhaeuser was no gracious to open its doors for the gala that organizers would rather not enjoy the company with a flood of "dance hall" re­quest, said Karen Peterson, one of the coordinators. She is handling requests for invitations to the $75/per person event. Some 1,200 invitations were mailed recently to hospital staff, service club members and past gala-attendees. To receive one, call 952-7597. The reserva­tions deadline is April 28.

The first gala was held inside the hospital shortly before it opened in 1987. That, of course, is now impossible because St. Francis is open for business.

For participants, the evening will start when they arrive at the building's east entrance, where Johann Strauss String Trio will wait, via outside speakers, to the entry walkway, setting the event's permanent home.

The second gala was held at the Twin Lake Country Club, but if all goes well this year, Weyerhaeuser could become the gala's permanent home.

The third St. Francis Hospital Gala organizers Mary Weis and Tim Ham sample the menu for the May 6 af­fair, to be held at the Weyerhaeuser corporate headquarters. Weyerhaeuser's private chef will prepare the Austrian meal for the gala, whose theme is "An Evening in Vienna."

Fishing regulations are the same as last year. If you don't know them, pick up a pamphlet from your tackle shop and get familiar with the lakes you intend to fish. A change that went into effect last year that many people will be familiar with is that the daily catch limit for adults (eight). Remember that streams remain closed until June 24. Here in King County, there will be late of angler's daily limit on fish. I reviewed the state's fishing season. For most of our lowland lakes, the delay means the lakes aren't expected to have a good population of young fish.

Last weekend my buddy, Ron, and I went to Lake Lenore in Eastern Washington. It was extrem­ently windy, so we concentrated on fishing with jigs close to shore. We caught fish to 4 pounds with the easiest pickings coming from there. Those fish hit every color and size, but it was black.

Last Sunday, long-cod fishing opened on Puget Sound. We limited to one fish in at least 18 inches long. The season runs through May 31.

Last weekend my buddy, Ron, and I went to Lake Lenore in Eastern Washington. It was extrem­ently windy, so we concentrated on fishing with jigs close to shore. We caught fish to 4 pounds with the easiest pickings coming from there. Those fish hit every color and size, but it was black.

Last Sunday, long-cod fishing opened on Puget Sound. We limited to one fish in at least 18 inches long. The season runs through May 31.

For the second straight year, the Decatur boys soccer team finished just short of the state playoffs. The Warriors lost to Lakeview 2-1 Wednesday. April 19, 1989 The News

In the bottom of the first and sixth, the Gators' lead held until looking on the second half goal, when Lakes took a break. A penalty was called on Decatur in the goal box, and Mayner scored in a one-on-one situation with Lakeview goalie Milt DeAsis. There were several other opportunities for the Gators in regulation time, but the Gator defense came down to a shootout after both teams came up empty in the two overtimes.

Bjorn Piana was the first Gator to line up from the penalty mark against Lakes goalie Jered Fadly, and he deflected the ball from the left corner. Brian Rogers answered for the Gators in the second round, but Lakes' Rick Dennison deflected it wide of the net.

Lakes took the lead back with a goal from Ryan Berg, only to have Berg's penalty kick deflected by Fadly.

The Warriors outhit the Eagles, 12-4. Federal Way used Wagner started and suffered the loss, while Robert Domzalski served up empty in the two overtimes. Fadly followed with the winning goal in overtime.

"The Gators had a bye yesterday, and young were not as sharp," said Dennison of the 0-4 Vikings.

After his Super Bowl performance, Eagles offense coordinator Dick LeBeau said the team just needs to "keep doing what we have been doing."

The offense has been the key to the Eagles' success this season. However, LeBeau knows that the defense must step up if the team is to have a chance at winning the Super Bowl.

LeBeau said that the defense must focus on stopping the run and forcing turnovers. He said that the defense also needs to be more aggressive and put more pressure on the quarterback.

LeBeau expects the Eagles to have a successful season if they continue to play well on both sides of the ball. He said that the team is hungry for a championship and will do whatever it takes to get there.

LeBeau said that the Eagles will continue to work hard in the offseason to prepare for the upcoming season. He said that the team will focus on improving in all areas of the game and will work on correcting any mistakes that were made during the season.

LeBeau said that the Eagles will have a great chance at winning the Super Bowl if they stay healthy and continue to improve. He said that the team is determined to bring a championship to Philadelphia.

The City of Kent will celebrate a grand opening at its newest park, the "Old Fishing Hole," this Sunday at 10 a.m. The pond, which will be regulated as a "juvenile fishing pond" for youngsters 14 and under, also has access for those who are wheelchair-bound.

The Kent Parks Department has also lent a helping hand and will be responsible for maintaining the park from here on out. The pond was open for fishing last year, but the special opening-day ceremony this weekend will be a special dedication to make the Old Fishing Hole a Kent park facility.

Jack Ball, Kent experimental parks maintenance, said the Department of Wildlife is stocking the pond with some 500 fish for opening day.

Sign your Declaration of Independence today with the last major bank left around here.

The fact is, every major commercial bank in Washington state has sold out to state concerns — all except one. Rainier and Seafleece are now owned by California megabanks. Seattle Trust is owned by a bank in New York. And you have to call Portland, Oregon to talk to the new owners of Peoples or Old National Bank.

By selling, they've given us a brand new competitive edge. Puget Sound Bank is now in a class all by itself.

Independent. And proof of it. That could be a big advantage for you. Especially if you want a loan. Because we're locally controlled we can give you faster answers.

Every one of our local branch managers has the authority to approve loans to independent businesses, without referring them to a committee.

Every time you use one of our credit cards, we return a financial contribution to a fund to help clean up pollution in Puget Sound.

Puget Sound Bank can do more than some banks because we don't have to export money to absentee owners. And we don't have to import our people, either. Even though we're a billion-dollar bank with more than 80 offices, the people at Puget Sound Bank have never forgotten what made us successful in the first place: a hometown spirit that began with simply being nice to people, and through professionalism, has evolved into Premier Service, the hallmark of our bank.

Smaller cars strain cooling systems

High temperatures are tough on rubber parts

Owners of newer, smaller cars who are prone to long highway driving should "bump up" on the subject before proceeding, says Car Care Council.

These engines produce up to 25 percent more heat than their bigger predecessors. They have aluminum heads and blocks instead of heavy cast iron, so they require new antifreeze-cum-surfactant compatible with these metals. The Council recommends a summer flush and refill of antifreeze to retain the added heat capacity, and to protect the life of the radiator and other parts.

High temperatures are associated with the new cars cause rubber components to deteriorate much more quickly than on earlier models. Therefore, a careful check of the cooling system care, send a quarter along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Car Care Council, Cooling, 600 4th Street, Suite 400, Alexandria, VA 22314.

Most engines grow oil-thirsty for variety of reasons

"engines grow oil-thirsty for variety of reasons" is not a complete sentence. The sentence should end with a period. The correct sentence is: "Engines grow oil-thirsty for variety of reasons."
Seasonal maintenance is best way to boost resale

All factors being equal — the make, model, condition and features of the car you own — the car that has been neglected can lose up to 50% of its value in the first two years, according to Gardiner. A car that has been maintained can lose 20% of its value in two years, Gardiner said. The longer the car has been neglected, the more it will lose in value.

Experts agree that if the car has been neglected, it can lose $600 to $2,000 in value. The average value of a new car is $12,000. To show the importance of maintenance, Gardiner said, "A used car trade-in that is not maintained will bring $1,500 to $2,000 less than a car that is service-d correctly."

Gardiner said the reason for the loss in value is that cars that are neglected will have higher maintenance costs, which will affect the resale value. He said that the value of a car decreases by about 10% each year. A car that is neglected will lose about 20% in value each year, while a car that is maintained will lose about 10% in value each year.

The best way to maintain a car is to service it regularly, according to Gardiner. He said that the car should be serviced every two years or 30,000 miles, whichever comes first. The car should be serviced at least once a year, and it should be serviced every 10,000 miles if it is used for more than 20,000 miles per year.

The best way to maintain a car is to service it regularly, according to Gardiner. He said that the car should be serviced every two years or 30,000 miles, whichever comes first. The car should be serviced at least once a year, and it should be serviced every 10,000 miles if it is used for more than 20,000 miles per year.

Check transmission fluid to avoid costly repairs

Most owners of cars or trucks have heard a grinding sound when the transmission is first engaged, or, if the noise persists, the mechanic will probably advise a trip to the repair shop. The problem could be caused by a malfunctioning transmission fluid, leading to the eventual destruction of the transmission itself.

Home mechanics depend upon updated manuals

After five years of struggle, the company that has worked so well to develop robust health again, Roger Smith, chairman of the General Motors, has seen his number of sales, production, and trucks for the 1985 model year. In fact, the General Motors, which is the history of the industry, surpassed only by the numbers running up to 1954. The General Motors, however, is not following the same things to come and, if American Motors, can't sell it over the past few years, it is to be prepared for the worst.

Nowhere is this more obvious than in the area of computer systems — one car in every five sold at the end of the 1970s — has promised Chilton to publish a Guide to Control Electronic Controls and a Guide to Fuel Injection and Electronic Engine Controls. With the addition of electronic computers to car engines, manuals can now be found in auto repair shops.

Chilton publishes manuals and Repair and Tune-Up Guides that provide the most complete automobile diagnostic, information, and instructions are updated yearly, along with details to aid in the repair and trouble-shooting usually sold at all of its competitors.

The impending book is the first to include and export car and truck repair manuals, which cover in depth all the major systems of cars and over the past few years, they have been updated and reprinted, and are now available in Canada and all over the world. There are 55 Repair & Tune-Up Guides, containing specific American and import manuals of the past two decades.

The fastest-growing series of books is those produced by Chilton Book Company, 1000 North King of Prussia Road, Radnor, Pennsylvania.

Follow owner's manual to lengthen car's life

Conventional wisdom holds that to make your car last longer you'd either have to be a little old lady who drives only on Sundays or a developmentally disabled with a garage full of tools. Both experts hold a different story.

Jerry's Little Car Shop, a franchise of the Foss Tire & Service chain, welcomes national and commercial accounts as well as the casual customer. Jerry's has an excellent reputation in the area and it's well deserved.

Exposure wears even unused wipers

Diamonds may last forever, but your windshield wipers won't. Wipers are easy to maintain and replace, and vital for ensuring the best vision during the worst weather—hail, sleet, snow, rain and smog. Wipers seldom last six months, but batteries and starters can fail in a year. Check the condition of the battery, cables, connections, and the starter.

Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for tire treads. Replace the air filter as necessary. Summer's heavy vacation driving may require you to replace a vacuum hose. Check the gaskets and hoses for signs of cracking, swelling, and brittleness. How long has it been since the antifreeze was changed? When was the system completely flushed out? Never test the brittleness of hoses or tires when the engine is cool. Use a pro-grade oil and replace the oil filter. Watch headlights, taillights, turning signals, and replace bulb.

This is leading to is a tire with tread. In order to experience and driver to be the very best, you once again have a Tire store that can handle your needs for fluids and tires and all types of mechanical services from oil changes to engine rebuilds.

Tires are car's contact with road

Tires provide the only contact a vehicle has with the actual road surface. For that reason, proper selection of tires is vital to safe driving and optimum vehicle control. Here, then, are some facts that should make buying and caring for tires easier.

Some auto manufacturers recommend a range of inflation pressures to suit intended use — from normal driving to off-road. These pressures are usually expressed in pounds per square inch (psi) and the manufacturer's recommendation represents minimum inflation figures. Though tire pressure should never fall below these levels, it may be increased slightly. For instance, extended highway driving tends to raise tire temperatures — calls for a higher pressure than ordinary driving. Generally, stability and vehicle control improve with pressures increased by about three to five pounds.

It is important to remember, too, that some vehicles may require different weight distribution. Unusual vehicle handling characteristics may result if improper front-to-rear tire pressures are used. Check your owner's manual for proper levels.

Tire pressure should be checked monthly — don't forget the spare — when tires are cold (less than three miles of driving). Since heat build-up after driving (less than three miles of driving) makes tire pressure rise faster, low pressure causes more flexing and allows too much heat building in the tire, while also only wasting precious gasoline.

Extreme over-inflation can be dangerous also. Tires are more likely to be damaged by holes and objects in the roadway. Never inflate a tire beyond the stated maximum load level (generally 35 psi, regardless of tire size) molded on the tire. Recheck pressure each month. Remember that tires wear differently on various wheel positions. To distribute wear evenly and extend tread life, tires should be rotated according to the pattern and frequency outlined in the owner's manual.

For optimum life, wear should be evenly distributed around the circumference of the tire, which means that proper wheel alignment and tire balancing are necessary.
