County would honor '89 budget

By LYNN SEIDNER

The city council has voted unanimously for a budget that will bring a host of changes that have been discussed for some time by local leaders. Although the budget will bring some new ideas, it is expected to keep the city running smoothly.

The budget includes several changes that will affect the city's operations. The most significant is the addition of a new department, the Recreation and Parks Department. This department will be responsible for maintaining the city's parks and recreation areas, as well as providing programs and services for residents. The budget also includes increased funding for the police and fire departments, as well as the school district.

In addition to these changes, the budget also includes funding for several capital projects, including the construction of a new community center and the renovation of several local schools. The budget also includes funding for the city's transit system, as well as the maintenance of local roads and streets.

The budget will be presented to the city council for final approval in the coming weeks. If approved, the budget will take effect on July 1, 1989.

Amendment survives despite intense lobbying from Tacoma

By ANN SEIDNER

A proposal to ban smoking in all district buildings has survived a series of amendments in the state legislature, but it is still facing a tough battle in the city council.

The bill, which was introduced by Sen. Peter von Reichbauer (R-30th), was passed by the state legislature and is now awaiting the governor's signature. The bill would prohibit smoking in all district buildings, including schools, offices, and public facilities.

However, the bill has faced intense opposition from the city council and other local officials. A series of amendments have been introduced to water down the bill and reduce its impact on the city's budget.

The latest amendment, which was introduced byCouncilor Bill Johnson, would allow smoking in certain areas of the district buildings. The amendment was introduced in an attempt to satisfy the concerns of councilors who believe the bill would be too restrictive.

The bill is expected to be voted on in the city council next month. If passed, it will go into effect on January 1, 1990.

Local man to direct Welsh choir

By TIM CLINTON

Tim Dyck has come a long way to direct a Welsh choir. The Canadian-born Dyck, who now lives in Seattle, has been working with the Welsh choir for several years, and will now direct it once for the Seattle performance.

Dyck was born in Winnipeg, Canada, but moved to England when he was 10 years old. He spent his childhood in London, where he attended the International School. After graduating from Queen Mary College, London, he moved to Canada and worked as a music director for several years. He eventually decided to return to the United States and move to Seattle, where he now lives.

Dyck has been involved with the Welsh choir for several years, and was only the first of several directors who have worked with the choir. He has worked with several different choirs in the past, and is now ready to direct the Welsh choir once again.

The choir is a traditional Welsh choir, and is known for its beautiful singing and its love of the Welsh language. Dyck is excited to be able to work with the choir once again, and is looking forward to the performance in Seattle.

Tickets for the performance are available at the box office, and are $6 for adults and $5 for seniors. The performance will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, April 21, 1989, at the Seattle Center. For more information, call 839-9132.
DIAGNOSIS LIVING

"I want to continue treating you, but I will no longer pay for your medication," the doctor said to a patient with diabetes. The patient was shocked and disbelief set in. The doctor explained that the patient needed to rely on insulin shots and lifestyle changes to manage the disease. The patient left the office feeling overwhelmed.

In the 20th century, the Pope had Michelangelo paint the Sistine Chapel ceiling. In the 21st century, a United Methodist Church near Federal Way had a local minister and a group of laypeople consider moving into an abandoned neighborhood church.

About 20 Eagles Rock United Methodist Church members in Federal Way meet in the church that stands empty of people, waiting for a God who did not preserve their faith.

“Given the circumstances, we never expected to be where we are,” said the Rev. Chuck Hindman, pastor of the church, which has an average Sunday attendance of about 44 people.

Hindman said that God uses a hand from the community to move the church.

The church, 8300 S.W. 33rd St., Federal Way, 98003, usually would celebrate the decision to proceed with its building project.

This Easter Sunday, the Rev. Chuck Hindman, pastor of the church, started the church at the behest of the neighborhood. Modernization of Lake Grove is scheduled to start in June. The congregation will be able to occupy the building when it moves into the new church by fall. The church will go to the New Church when the church and group are able to purchase the building.

Hindman said that the church believes God has granted to us.

“God has given to us a mission and a vision to fulfill that need,” Hindman said. “But we need God’s help in order to do that.”

The congregation, which has an average Sunday attendance of about 44 people, is under the leadership of Hindman, who is also the pastor of the church.

Old hydroplane helps to promote museum

The big Miss Thriftway was king of the hill at a recent charity bowling tournament in Federal Way. The 13-year-old water glider won the tournament's high-scoring trophy, and its skipper, Milt DeAsis, was the big winner at display at Federal Way Freeway Showcase.

The “Miss Thriftway,” which was built in 1933, is one of the most famous hydroplanes in the world. It won the Sunken Ships' title in 1934 and the Trans-Atlantic cup in 1935. It is considered one of the greatest hydroplanes ever built, and its influence has been felt in the sport for many years.

The museum is located in Federal Way and is on display at Freeway Showcase lot next to I-5.

A crowd of people, including Milt DeAsis, was on hand to see the old boat. The museum is trying to find a permanent location for the boat, which was on display for the first time in many years.

The museum is trying to promote a proposed world class museum in the Puget Sound area. Curators are working to collect more artifacts and information about the sport of hydroplane racing.
