A $1 million program approved by the King County Council on Monday will bring unsubsidized child care to parents in South King County this year.

This voucher program will serve low-income working parents who do not qualify for other aid. County officials estimate that of the 12,700 children living out of the county, only 7,300 are eligible to receive the unsubsidized care, close to 9,000 live in South King County.

Based on these figures, the county will spend 60 percent of the $1 million on children in the south portion of the county.

Sadikifu Akina-Jones, child care coordinator for the county said the appropriation should provide child-care for 1,000 children.

AKINA-JONES WILL begin recruiting providers next month. By June, she plans to begin enrolling parents to participate in the program.

Eligible families will receive large by month.

Part of Lakota fish ladder caves in

By KURT HERZOG

A fish ladder the Federal Way water and sewer district built for the benefit of the judges, but it has partially collapsed.

The ladder was built out of beam and rock as part of a project to relocate Lakota Creek, which runs next to the plant at 3045 Dash Point Road. The entire stream relocation project cost about $1.6 million.

District officials estimate it will cost about $15,000 to fix.

The stream relocation was completed in mid-1987, and the existing sewage treatment plant was under construction.

The service sewage treatment project, currently under construction, is expected to cost $8.1 million. It is scheduled to begin operating in January 1989.

Officials aren't sure what caused the concrete wall of the fish ladder to collapse. Since erosion had been seen a short time ago, but most of the damage was done sometime ago. At least one of the two rain falls on Saturday, officials said, caused the concrete to crack into sections. Water filled the hole and pulled the concrete even more.
Capp's creation comes to Auburn

By SEAN ROBINSON

Seattle's own comic cartoon genius, the late “Fletch” creator, Charles “Capp” Dicken, has a new show coming to the Auburn Avenue Auditorium this weekend in the form of a new musical, “Nightingale.”

The story is about two girls from vastly different backgrounds who go on a cross-country road trip in dad's classic Ford pickup. The girls are played by Zanja Keene and Crystal Murray, respectively.

The show is directed by Patrick Dennis and features music by Cy Coleman and lyrics by Al Jolson. The cast is filled with talented performers, including Marty Durham as Abner, and Robert Heinzle as Pappy Yokum.

Capp's usual choice of topics is once again on display, with references to the famous facial expressions and various stereotypes. Tom Cruise plays his usual man's performance, as usual, is Impeccable.

The show has been extended through May 28 at the Auburn Avenue Auditorium. For more information, call the box office at 443-6000.

Variety show to be staged in Auburn

The All New Old Time Fiddler and Variety Show will perform at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at the Auburn Performing Arts Center.

In the tradition of the old American variety show, the performers range from singing, dancing, bluegrass musicians, and more.

Sponsored by the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, the event will cost $5 per person. The arts center is located at 700 Auburn Ave. Call 223-4001 for more information.

Historical fashion show is tomorrow

A Centennial fashion show sponsored by the Federal Way Woman's Network will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. April 29, at Deemer High School, 500 S. 256th St.

The event will feature dress styles from the 1930's to the 50's. A tea and auction will follow the show, which is open to the public.

For more information, call 627-5881.

Community theater to present 'Nightingale'

Burien Little Theatre will open "And A Nightingale Sang" tonight at the Highland Community Center.

The play, which is set in England, tells the story of a young woman who comes from a humble background and falls in love with a member of the aristocracy. Directed by David Lee-Painter, the cast includes Allen Remer of Burien, who has been involved for 30 years with community theater. Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and disabled guests. Group rates also are available.

The play will run weekends through May 27. Show times are 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday. The community center is located at 1425 NE 14th, at 36th Street East.

For more information, call 223-4001.

Dance used to express liturgy

By WENDY CULVERWELL

As a Lutheran church in Bellport, dancers move past the chancel window in the Lutheran Church while teaching a class on liturgical dancing Wednesday night. Liturgical dancing dramizes sacred works through movement.

"It's an extension of what we do already. We get up, we sit, we worship, God, the Rev. Jim Christianson, Movement in Seattle.

The children will present special gifts to their mothers for Mother's Day, and provide food items they cooked by themselves.

Francis McConnell

F.W. "Bill" McConnell says he is not interested in the people of Federal Way past the city limits and is running for the Federal Way City Council.

McConnell, 41, has lived in Federal Way for 10 years. He said that before he could run for the seat, he would have to become a resident of the city and get nominated by five people. McConnell, a ninth-grade English teacher at Federal Way High School, said he would like to be nominated by those five people once he becomes a resident.

Bill McConnell

Anders Francis McConnell needs the people of Federal Way for nearly 20 years, he said. In that time he has become disoriented under the direction of the King County police.

"I don't like it like I don't like it," Hagberg said.

"If we can make the people more excited and rewarding government," Hagberg said.

"Anders is a nine-year resident of the United States."
