Teen charged in Portland gang shooting

By LYNN KEENEAU

A Federal Way teen-ager has been charged by local police to be a participant in a drive-by shooting in Portland.

The youth, a former Decatur High School student who will turn 15 later this month, is charged with four counts of attempted murder. Portland police report the youth was driving around that night in a car with three other young men, all affiliated with the Crips gang, when they spotted four members of the rival Bloods gang on the porch. The Federal Way youth, who has been living off and on in Portland, told his companions to take him home, where he retrieved the handgun used in the attack, said Det. Bruce Sherman of the Portland Police Department.

The Crips returned to the house, which is in a neighborhood troubled by gang activity, Sherman said, and the teen found two of them standing on the front porch. The two men fired back, but missed the fleeing car, he said.

The driver of the car, a 21-year-old man also from Federal Way, was not arrested. He did tell police, however, that the youth bragged just before he started shooting, "I’m going to shoot those slobs." The youth, said, from a police report. A slob is a derogatory term for rival gang members.

Sherman said the Federal Way youth also admitted to arrest officers that he did the shooting.

Budget bonanza puzzles schools

By MELINDA STRICKER

Most people would not be facethe kind of budget dilemma confronting the Federal Way School District.

After all, having an estimated $24.6 million left over from last year's budget is like winning the lottery.

Yet, that's $24.6 million left over.

Reason to celebrate? Not necessarily. It's got school administrators overeager to spend money not spent on schools and students.

And that generally does not look good to the public, which no doubt is the reason Superintendent Richard Harris, whose emphasis on regional planning, was too conservative. Or administrators were overeager to spend the money in the first place.

Sherman said, reading from a memorandum to Portland police officers that he did the shooting.

The driver of the car, a 22-year-old man also from Federal Way, was not arrested. He did tell police, however, that the youth bragged just before he started shooting, "I’m going to shoot those slobs." The youth, said, from a police report. A slob is a derogatory term for rival gang members.

One dead in car-ambulance collision

An 85-year-old Everett man was killed when his car was hit by a motorcycle. But Brant Butte, a motorcycle rider, was killed Wednesday afternoon when his car was hit broad side by a vehicle.

Hersal D. Ray was turning southwest onto Seventh Avenue Southwest at 320th Street from the north side of the road, but he was hit by a motorcycle as he crossed the intersection with a pedestrian.

Ray was pronounced dead at the scene, and his passenger, a 6-year-old girl of Austin, was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday morning at Harborview Medical Center. The ambulance driver and emergency personnel transported the girl from the scene.

Debate centers on multi-family housing

By KURT HERKROD

The Federal Way housing issue highlights the differences between the two Federal Way candidates running in the 4th Congressional District.

"We have an overdevelopment of multifamily housing," said Marks, a pharmacological consultant. "We need to control growth." But while Marks said the city should set strict standards for new development, Pristas said the city should be a balance of multi-family and single-family housing and commercial development.

"We have a balanced community," said Pristas, a commercial real estate broker. "Growth is something you can't stop. We need to balance it." Multi-family housing is not out of control in Federal Way, Pristas said, but a moratorium is not the way to solve the problem. The growth is not a frenzied situation, just the way things are growing, he said.

"Growth is a developer's situation," Pristas said. Federal Way is in a growth-related, including what community would be an accident, but at that time, none was available. The ambulance involved in the second accident was not capable of being able to transport the patient to the hospital because of its limited size.

"We do not believe that it is a serious problem," said Pristas. The impact of a prolonged traffic jam on the growth-related, including what community would be an accident, but at that time, none was available. The ambulance involved in the second accident was not capable of being able to transport the patient to the hospital because of its limited size.
Lizbeth to perform at Steel Lake park

For the next three Sundays, the King County parks department will honor two popular Seattle residents with a performance at the largest of its annual concert series. Today, July 14, Lizbeth will perform popular hits at Steel Lake Park. The next two weekends will feature Masewicz, the Scottish Country Dancers and a classic car show.

Senior center hosts July Fest

The Federal Way Senior Center will host its first July Fest this weekend, featuring a children's dance band, entertainment, style show and car show today at the Federal Way Senior Center. The following weekend, July 21, will feature a band with a rotating schedule, entertainment, style show and car show.

A peek at the weekend

Tonight: Kent and Auburn will again compete for audiences at 7:30 p.m. as two concerts commence in each city. In Kent, Jesse Winchester will perform at Mill Creek Canyon Earthworks Park. In Auburn, the Memphis-based musician has been recorded by the likes of Johnnie Ray and Jimmy Buffett, and recently released a new album of his own. Admission is free but a $1 donation is requested. For more information, call 431-0452.

Sunday: The Gateway Center in Kent will kick off its summer activities with the annual All City Cartoon Derby at 3 p.m. at St. John's Church. Cartoonists, artists, clowns, comics, and gag people are encouraged to build and race a cart as a creative as their talents permit. There is no entry fee, and performance by children's entertainer Tim Noah at 3 p.m. at Steel Lake park. For more information, call 431-0452.

Steel Lake Park will feature carnings, sidewalk acts, a variety of booths with food and merchandise, a 4-State camping and car show and a street dance. A children's parade will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday. Both dances will take place at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

The city of Auburn has scheduled its annual cornucopia festival for today, Saturday, at the Auburn Center Park. Activities include a corn roast, refreshments and entertainment.

Lunch will be available at the Gateway Center.

Good evening to children

I know Jesus had some children when he lived on earth. I tell you the children will not receive the kingdom of God unless they come to me like a little child. (Mark 9:37). Most kids are not polished nor perfect, but they love the theme because it is fun and exciting.

Pastor’s Corner

When we find ways to take our children to church as Jesus did, we often discover that they are a little less boring to us. For who knows better than a child from a loving heavenly father?

Proposed budget would boost after-school bus runs

By MARGIE STREITBERG

It doesn't include as much as it did last year, but Superintendent Richard Harris says a proposed $68.9 million operating budget for the coming school year would fulfill some wishes.

It would add money for transportation from about 300 students to five local elementary schools, and would make room for a caseworker at local elementary schools.

Also, the budget would provide such classes as "Gifted Talent Pool," a six-week classroom enrichment program for students designated as gifted.

Counselors and after-school transportation would add to the Federal Way School District's already beefed-up social problems for at-risk students, Harris added.

The budget also includes travel and transportation for help building up the counseling staff in the counseling office.

"What the community really wants is in lower class size," Harris said, "and board members are concerned about that, too.

"On average, class size for kindergartners and first graders is now restricted to 26 or less, and the district average for those grades is about 24 to 25 students per class," said Dolores Gibbons, assistant superintendent for elementary education. Thirty students per class is the buildingwide average for second through sixth grades, which allows more classes to be as low as 30 and some much lower.

"A single teacher in junior high or high school can have classes of up to 35 students before getting a teacher's aide to help out," Harris said.

Harris stated that additional teachers for younger students are included in the proposed budget. But the district does not yet know how many teachers it can afford, nor, "We haven't figured out whether we're going to provide that funding," Harris said.

THE $68.9 MILLION the district is looking to spend next year is made up of state and federal funds, plus $4.1 million left over from last year's $65.7 million spending plan.

Spending $65.7 million next year would leave $600,000 in reserve, available for the 1990-91 school year. That's far short of the 3 percent reserve, or $1 million, Harris would like to see.

"We have to start looking at your priorities now, though," Harris said. "You have to ask which is more important to the community, the BACC (Building Amenities and Counseling) grants." For more about the proposed 1989-90 school budget, see page A-7.

What you see here are some trees in western Washington that we've been raising for the past fifty years. Fifty years ago, forest management was a pretty radical idea. But we knew then, as we know now, that trees are a renewable resource. The result: Today we have a plentiful supply of second-growth timber that is made into pulp, paper, building materials and other wood products you use every day. This newspaper, for example. Our job in the meantime will continue to be growing trees. Last year, we planted over 13 million seedlings on Weyerhaeuser land here in Washington State. And sold an additional 20 million seedlings to both public and private organizations. Look at it this way: In fifty years, we'll be right back where we started. Again.
