Bad meat spoils health board's day

By LYNN FRANCISCO

Members of the King County Board of Public Health watched their noses and Falafel at their wanton eyes as the smell of spoiled beef wafted across the room on Monday's emergency meeting.

"It's impossible to set up a new city like this," Prothman told eight of the 14 area managers.

"It's mind-boggling," Prothman said.

"What's that green stuff?" asked, "What's that green stuff?"

"I opened the package of meat and it was discolored and rotting produce ended with the 30-year-old veal hamburger and a select cut of beef instantly told Joaquim that he..."

"When I stored the meat, it was red and looked fine. There was no green smell or bad odors," said Joaquim's husband, John, a concrete worker. "I immediately washed my hands."

"I smelled like a rotten sewer," said Joaquim. "The odor was so repulsive that my husband was forbidden to enter the kitchen."..."

"I'm a permanent city manager. A permanent city manager would be more likely to make the hard, unpopular decisions a new city needs, according to chairwoman Cynthia Meeker of the King County Board of Public Health..."

"Members of the King County Board of Public Health preferred denial of the request. Kent Swartwout, a representative of that agency, said, 'It was a good year as cash to make such challenges to the no-burn sites in the future.'"

"It's a victory, I think, for not only the residents of Dush Point and Federal Way, but for everybody from Everett to Tacoma,'" he said. "The board's decision will be new and what's best for the residents of North Ridge..."

Pollution control board spurns burn variance

By MELROSE STYGES

In what may be a precedent-setting decision, the Puget Sound Air Pollution Control Board denied a variance from the area's new no-burn ordinance to Tacoma.

The request was the first out of the area's 14 districts to be heard, and the variances for improperly cleared land-clearing fires issued to Robison Farms in the Harbor Ridge development's general contractor, Jan. 1, a permit allowed the contractor to conduct land-clearing fires once they had issued."

"We use SELECT CLEAR CEDAR board (absolutely no preservatives)," said Debra Joaquim.

Running the city

Municipal managers offer guidance

By KURT HERBING

One of the first steps the new Federal Way City Council will have to take is to hire a city manager. According to municipal manager Joe Pouget, the city will advertise for a permanent city manager in the near future.

"We seem to have a lack of a challenge ahead of us," said Pouget.

Street Talk: Would you have gone on the very first space flight to the moon?

Jonathan Jepson (Student)

"Yeah. I think I would have loved the experience. I would have been scared, I guess, but it would have been worth it."

Zach Thieme (Student)

"I've always thought it would look down on the earth. It would be so peaceful and cool to just be up on the earth. I plan to be an astronaut someday."

Katie Thieme (Student)

"Yeah, I want to go up there and see the stars."

Abortion erodes reverence for life

The Federal Way Community Council has represented a lot of the people in Federal Way (including the east side) for many years. Today, and into the future, it should continue to provide an opportunity for neighborhood representation from within the city, sponsoring town hall meetings, election and special elections, debates, presentations, celebrations, civic concerns and local issues.

Just as Federal Way First! was born for a single purpose, the creation of a new city, and Pierce 2020 was created outside of the WCRC as its former president was a voice against runaway government, the east side Community Council is born out of the challenge of the 1990s and beyond in determining our new destiny. Our capacity will be in our ability to perceive and accompany the various government agencies, to debate of Washington and King County, that have cooperated with the Federal Way Community Council in years past.

The Federal Way Community Council is at its best when our editorial clearly states that their capacity to all governmental agencies will be to fulfill the time to a county council is only a dream to the minds of the residents. Certainly, the question county voters this fall is that the bond issue for new school districts and transportation projects will scare the minds of the residents. Certainly, the question of property taxes from within the area will never be. Even so, the East Side Community Council should not be viewed as a group that is any different from your neighbors and your friends.

Mer Willis hasn't had anybody take him up on his special hair cut offer for 12 or 13 years. Today, you young men who are about to enter the military, Mr. Willis offers a complimentary haircut to all young men about to enter the military. His friend, Chuck, watches from the doorway along with some of the recruits' friends.

"I feel it wasn't responsible for first to have been started right behind the house we live in," said Ed Coutts, fire marshall of Fire District 39. "I feel the extra cost entailed by clearing land in a no-burn zone."

Alternatives to burning uncontrolled grass fires, such as mowing or mechanical methods, were discussed.

"I feel so bald," Chuck commented. "I feel it wasn't responsible for first to have been started right behind the house we live in."

Chuck Hussey, 19, put his brown and blonde streaked hair at the mercy of the man who gave him his first haircut 13 years ago. "I'm not sure people should beProjecting," he said, as he prepared for the job.

"You might burn the corner on this hat," joked one of Hussey's six or seven friends who showed up for the special occasion. about the inconvenience and the interruption during the dinner hour," Joaquim said.

Joaquim subsequently wrote a letter to the board members to make their decision in a less volatile environment, "where you are not looking across the table at protesters on beach," she said. "we could order stepped-up inspections and bring more inspectors on board," she said.

Although Joaquim already prepared another meal, in- stant told her to check the new meat for freshness. "I put it up to my nose and I could smell the rotten meat. I didn't even unwrap it," she said. Joaquim said that while she wasn't aware of Joaquim's complaint, Safeway cares about its customers and guarantees satisfaction, even in a labor dispute. "Safeway's first priority is to make sure we have the freshest products available to customers," Myers said.

Joaquim did so, but declined another return. She called Sullivan's office, and said the quality of meat has deteriorated since grocery workers and meatcutters began a strike May 10.

Safeway for nearly 20 years and said the quality of meat has deteriorated since grocery workers and meatcutters began a strike May 10.

Last Monday, Joaquim said she watched a television news report and saw King County Conservation Officer Sullivan chairing a meeting for next Wednesday and said the board would decide then if stronger measures need to be taken. "We could order stepped-up inspections and bring more inspectors on board," she said.

Feds take two out of three to open tourney

By TIM CLINTON

TWIN LAKES American Legion baseball team won two of three games in the Tom Bean Classic in Bellevue, puishing the Feds' hopes of advancing to the final in the tournament's "Pep-

Classic. Twin Lakes won 4-0 in the final, forcing the Feds to win two more games for the championship. The Feds opened play against Holy Names in the first game and crashed into Normandy Park for the second game.

Following the tournament, hall-of-fame catcher Bob Brown and shortstop Ricky Anderson said the Feds' lack of pitching may be their biggest weakness. "Our pitching is not good enough," said Brown.

"Our pitching is not good enough," said Brown. "We need to improve our pitching if we want to win the championship."

Jason Yeager loaded the bases, then scored when Landry ripped a single to right, but Yeager was cut down at the plate on the relay throw.

Federal Way National retaliated with two more runs in the top of the sixth. Brad Sugg was hit by a pitch, put the bases loaded on a walk, infield jam, however, on a 1-2-3 double play. Federal Way National came back to score two more in the bottom of the sixth. Stevenson walked and Sommer singled to right. Priestman stole with a fielder's choice. Todd Murray then hit a single to left and Lydell drove in Sommer for one run. Danny Graham walked and scored when Landry ripped a single to right. Yeager stayed on the field with the throw to third base.

"Those past two games our offense has really swung around," said Stevenson, whose team also beat Graham, 12-4, in its previous outing. "And the last two games we cut down on the walks, which really worked out well."

Six Federal Way American batters collected two or more hits. Landy was 3-for-4, Herrick 3-for-4, Priestman 5-for-5, Beno 3-for-5, Stevenson 5-for-5 for team summer 9-5. Federal Way National's lineup was in the top of the seventh. Stevenson walked and Sommer singled to right. Priestman stole with a fielder's choice. Todd Murray then hit a single to left and Lydell singled in Sommer and Sommer singled in Priestman for a 10-7 Federal Way National lead. Summer Splash '89 begins Friday

"Summer Splash '89" offers persons with physical disabilities the chance to enjoy a two-day water sports festival.

Water skiing, rowing, kayaking and sailing will be featured at the event, slated for Friday, July 21, and Saturday, July 22, and will be held at Normandy Park Lake in Federal Way.

Personnel 13 years of age and older with physical disabilities, including spinal cord injuries, cerebral palsy and multiple sclerosis, are encouraged to get involved.

Also, outdoor enthusiasts with experience in any of these water sports are invited to volunteer. Volunteer training is scheduled for Thursday, July 20.

Correction: It's a boy!
