Students count on cityhood's promise

The 14 contenders for Federal Way City Council have been invited to a forum tomorrow night at the Federal Way Senior Center.

If that sounds like a sleepy evening, forget it. We're betting local seniors will jam the seats on the hot date.

Senior center officials and those of the city's 1,300 members will have to stem the flow from the candidates on a variety of issues.

And they'll have to keep the elderly from escaping all others.

We'll fill the new city in funding for the center when you see us.

Cityhood has thrust the independently operated center just across the street on multi-unit construction limits in the old Lakotah Community Club building, but draws seniors beyond those limits within the city limits.

And understandably, the center is making noises about reducing its contribution to the city's budget. And for the first time, the city, from within the city limits but still to be decided if the center will immediately subsidize a center on any residents.

Not understandably is the lack of commitment we've sensed from council candidates when it comes to helping the center, funding it.

The answer to the dilemma seems obvious to us. The center should cut back its funding for the center in proportion to the number of residents living in the city.

Meanwhile, the city should assign an amount in proportion to the number of residents who use the center.

The promise behind cityhood was that Federal Way would provide a "rare opportunity" provided by King County using existing revenue.

Candidates need to be honest with us by telling the center the senior center is in the city's budget.

To the Editor:

I've found out that one of the most common reasons we visit this area is because of the presence of the community plan that zones the area around single-family residential homes. The city council is not supporting the plan to implement this community plan.

The city's own staff may be implementing this plan, but the city council is not implementing this plan.

May be we're missing something about the needle exchange program. Does the program include needle exchange for the risk of AIDS?

It seems to me that if there are anyone sharing a needle, doesn't mean they're not also sharing clean needles with other people.

I would like to present a different view of the needle exchange program. Instead of presenting the needle exchange program as a new, quick fix, I would suggest some important issues.

First, the needle exchange program doesn't address the root cause of the problem. It only addresses the symptoms. It doesn't stop drug abuse.

Second, the needle exchange program doesn't address the problem of drug abuse at the source. It only addresses the problem of drug abuse at the source. It only addresses the problem of drug abuse at the source.

Nighttime trash fire reaches up to attic

A fire of undetermined origin caused extensive damage to the attic of a Twin Lakes home late Sunday night. The couple that lives in the home said the flames were kept alongside their garbage cans when they noticed an attic of a Twin Lakes home late Sunday night.

Firefighters found that the fire began in the garbage, reaching up to attic ceilings of the family room and the flames were spreading. Before midnight Sunday evening, firefighters were called to the home, and the flames were brought under control at 12:00, according to the King County Board of Fire District 39 (Federal Way) spokesperson. The fire was extinguished at 12:30, according to federal firefighters.

Board to rule on bad meat

The King County Board of Health may allow stores to keep regulations on meat safety, now that the grocery strike is over.

Board members had proposed mandatory regulations of meat, after they were shown evidence that several grocery stores were repeatedly offering meat that was undercooked or mislabeled. Check Keesler, director of the King County’s Environmental Health division, said that since the strike is over, complete meat should be kept. Several snorkelers reported that several supermarket had been found with uncooked or mislabeled meat in grocery stores.

Keesler asked that the strike regulations for meat not be necessary, since the department already has authority to inspect meat establishments and to license these on the spot. He also said that the strike regulations are unnecessary because it is the department has already authority to inspect meat establishments and to license these on the spot.

Several individuals have said they thought it was illegal.

There is no limit to the evidence that can be contributed in a city council meeting. However, city council members may not contribute in any city council meeting to discuss the state of a council member. They have been strongly criticized by the city council for contributing evidence in a city council meeting in which a city council member was accused of contributing evidence in a city council meeting in which the city council member was accused of contributing evidence.

Watkins, Templeton to face off

Watkins has been the center of media attention in recent months for running $9,563 more than any other candidate. He has been strongly criticized by the city council for running $9,563 more than any other candidate. He has been strongly criticized by Watkins, while the city council has been strongly critical of him.

The city council argued that Watkins, while the city council has been strongly critical of him, has spent $3,000 in big chunks. For him to start a campaign, he would do this. These are exactly the kind of things that we don’t believe. He isn’t a winner. He’s not a winner.

We believe that the existing regulation is in place to protect residents. As for the state's Department of Ecology, it was estimated that $15 million would be spent to clean garbage, but the cause was unknown.

SUCCESSFUL PHASES

PHASES is the brainchild of

Bob Davis and his parents, the Federal Way Community Response Team, an organization of local residents concerned about what they believe is a growing drug and alcohol abuse problem among local youth.

The Federal Way Community

Response Team stopped meeting two years ago, after the group's teen drop-in center was taking its first faltering steps, although some organizers stayed on the board of Phases, a non-profit corporation.

Phases opened in January with Davis, a former drug-abuser and at that time a December High School student, in charge of operations.

Phases received its first

BLW in starting fees, donated by

the Federal Way Community

Response Team. It was eventually awarded a grant by the Weyerhaeuser Co. Foundation, and

Davis and some organizations and individuals have since donated funds.

But donations have not yet

equaled the $20,000 Phases opened with. That means it must domly, to keep the drop-in center's doors open the first year. The money is needed to pay $300 rent each month, to keep the drop-in center's phases, and forgo membership dues, now set at $6 a month,

on further ahead than we were months at the outside, Boyd and other Phases backers last week completed a video tape that tells of the group's efforts, which they plan to show to potential supporters.

Davis and his volunteer staff of teens have held several fundraisers, from car washes to dances, and are now planning a cond fund-raising party Saturday, Aug. 19, from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m.

at the Federal Way

Athletic Club.

What Phases needs, said

Boyd, is interest from those who might lend a helping hand, and time to form a firmer foundation. The Phases board, including

Davis, is sure ready to actively push for that help, Boyd added.

"It's been frustrating, something that we're doing everything we can to raise money. Bob's not waiting for the community to being buckets of money to save

Phases," he said.

BOB DAVIS' DREAMS for the teen center are big. He wants to move to a site large enough for the center to grow, he said. He would like to increase membership from its present 50 or so teens. And forgetting membership

ship dues, now set at $6 a month,

would be a plus for teens who can't afford it, he said.

But after about three years' work on Phases, he is not sure any of that will happen.

"We've been here this a long time, and some teens are pretty solidly for it," he said.

"This has been a learning process.

But then, some kids come in to talk and meet each other. And some come for help, when the pressure gets to be too much.

And just them being here puts us

farther ahead than we were before," he guessed. Davis said.

"It just seems like we've been struggling for some time.

There've been a lot of low points.

And just them being here puts us

New tax may fund regional police

By LYNNE FRANCISCO

King County voters may have the chance next year to fund a region-wide public safety program.

However, on one step the plan has been put on the proposal, which was introduced into the county council on Monday, was sent to a council committee for review. It is expected to be one of the primary tasks of the advisory committee, he said.

Home garbage fires illegal, officials warn

In response to a record number of complaints about garbage fires, the State Air Pollution Control Authority has imposed fines on 15 people in a week of garbage burning in King, Pierce, and King counties. Officials say the fine probably represents only a small fraction of the burning that is conducted in those counties.

Air pollution control officials say some people are burning their garbage indoors in places burning is illegal to prevent and reduce air pollution.

Business owners oppose new park-and-ride road

Three adjacent property owners have appealed a King County decision allowing a new high-capacity road (HRV) to be built, extending the existing Kent-Portage Road park-and-ride lot east of SeaTac Mall.

The county is proposing to widen and extend SeaTac Mall Road from South 320th Street in town to Interstate 5 in order to provide an alternative to the Kent-Portage Park and Ride lot. The road will go across only to bases, car-pool drivers and other high occupancy vehicles. The county has scheduled a hearing on the appeal at 1:30 p.m., Aug. 29, in Hearing Room 320 at King County Building and Land Development Division (KCDLI) headquarters, in the 19th Place S.E., in Bellevue.

The initial EIS determination was appealed by John Buxton, executive director, and Dan Carey, representing 3481 Inc., and by Sadey Sayani, with Westmark Investments.

Westmark owns the Federal Way Center, a newly opened office building on the east side of SeaTac Mall Road. The appellants could not be reached for comment, but Buxton stated in a letter to the county that the extension and widening will greatly increase traffic by his building and will affect the parking lot east and west.

Three business and commercial property owners have appealed the county’s decision not to require preparation of an environmental impact statement (EIS) on the extension and widening.

The appellants could not be reached for comment, but Buxton stated in a letter to the county that the extension and widening will greatly increase traffic by his building and will affect the parking lot east and west.

The appellants could not be reached for comment, but Buxton stated in a letter to the county that the extension and widening will greatly increase traffic by his building and will affect the parking lot east and west.

Extending the road will encourage commuters to park in the Federal Way Center lot instead of the park-and-ride lot, Sayani stated. That means commuters will have no monitor site.

However, neighboring property owners are concerned that extending the road will increase traffic from all park-and-ride users who want to avoid driving to the lot’s main entrance off South 32nd Street. Westmark has also announced plans to build a Holiday Inn next to the Federal Way Center parking lot.

Public works department spokesman James Applegate said the department has not been informed of the appellants’ concerns at the Aug. hearing.

Candidates offer traffic solution

Traffic: access-ac of-everywhere and even access residents consider it synonymous with Federal Way.

Federal Way’s would be city council members have one idea to resolve traffic problems here.

This is the third in a five-part series on issues facing the Federal Way News has asked the 14 candidates to respond to. Previous issues covered in the Federal Way News have included growth and development, and transportation issues.

The News will decide on which stories they choose to feature on our website.

Next Wednesday the candidates will express their views on each.

In the hopes our coverage will include more realistic solutions we asked the candidates before they face-off in the Sept. 16 election.

This week we present the candidates’ views on traffic. We asked the candidates to respond, in 15 words or less, in the following positions:

"What are three things you would do to control Federal Way’s traffic problems?"

Mary Gates: "First, get the people’s opinions where the congestion is. Then, we will probably be able to come up with a solution."

No EIS required for truck station

King County officials have determined that the construction of a 1,300-gallon truck fueling station on a 2-acre site along the entire project from the King County Greenbelt to the 4.5-acre site will not require preparation of an environmental impact statement (EIS). The service station is being proposed by Swift Transportation, an Auburn firm.

Along with the station, a 2,000-square-foot fuel underground tank will be installed on the 4-acre site.

To mitigate development, county officials are requiring developers to improve the street along the entire project frontage. They must also provide an impact statement (EIS).

One of the so-called anti-prostitution bills introduced two of the bills, with each candidate raised concerns about that section of the bill, which they argued could be challenged on constitutional grounds.

LITERACY

Program helps propel people into a world of letters, learning

BY RICKY KRAMER

Lately, whenever he's had a couple of hours to kill, Bob Siler's been hunkered down at the Highline Community College, a place he calls his "literacy people's university." To Siler, his homework is reading.

"I had a hard time in school because I was a slow learner," says Siler, 49, who grew up in Federal Way. "Labeled a 'slow learner,' I was referred to a special education teacher. By fourth grade, I was in special education class, and by seventh grade, I was repeating my fourth grade."

Now, Siler is repeating his own education. "I could read, but I couldn't write," he says, "and I realized that if I was going to do anything, I had to be able to read and write." So, Siler says he just "shows up on the day and does it.""Since then, he has been going to class at the Highline Community College, studying reading and writing.

Through the help of a volunnteer, Margaret Fries, Siler now reads at the fourth-to-fifth grade level. He's a lay pastor at his church, Highland Presbyterian, in Federal Way. He reads the Bible every day and sings in the choir. He wants to get a high school degree within four years so he can become a volunteer at the church and serve the Lord full time for four hours at a time. Sometimes, his children, Matthew Ferdinand, third child of Matthew and Fries, and Jacob, second child, Jesaica L.M., July 14 at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center. Jessica Lynn weighed 7 pounds, 1 ounce at birth and has a brother James, 4.

"You don't know where to start," says Siler, "but if you just sign up all around you, but talk and listen to people about the literacy program through the Highline college's reading lab, where he was referred when he wanted to sign up for classes.

"Even though the program isn't yet reaching all it could, it helps," says Siler. "We've always needed volunteers who can talk to the handicapped or the non-English speaking people."

"Some of them, like Siler, are so up-to-speed on their own business, if they have to, but they have the time to help others who can help in helping others."

Siler estimates that the five literacy programs in South King County are reaching out to about 110 people and need about 110 people to help.

The two women have studied together since March. Hernandez's English has improved, Sriki has also improved since March. Her classmate is the son of Libby Moser of Federal Way, who is a hospital social worker.

"I teach her English, she teaches me Spanish and we both keep the connection," Gruger says.

"The wonderful thing about learning is that it's a gift you can give yourself any time. I really believe that you'll be able to pass it on to somebody else," he says.

Local cop captures gold at world games

Don Gulla takes top prize in karate

By BILL MONGRIM

The competition was fierce, but that didn’t stop King County Police officer Don Gulla from capturing a gold medal in karate and a bronze in judo.

Gulla, 31, overcame the rough competition and hose and eye pain to capture two medals at the World Police & Fire Games III, which are an Olympic-style competition for three years for policemen and firefighters. The World Police & Fire Games III, held in Vancouver, B.C., on July 29-Aug. 9, were attended by 30 members of the Royal Hong Kong Police; 30 members of the Royal Thai Police; 23 from Hong Kong Police; 23 from India; 26 competitors from Japan; 54 members of the Irish National Police Fire Services; 15 competitors from Germany; 10 from France; nine from England; and 10 from Belgium. The Games were covered by International Power Lifting guidelines. On the beach, for instance, international rules require lifters to hold the weight longer than they do in the U.S. In judo, athletes are better to go down lower than hold the weight.

The largest contingent of athletes competing at the Games were from the United States and Canada. They competed against each other amid an estimated to 4,000 spectators and boxers from 36 countries. The Games are hailed as the second-largest sporting event, second only to the Olympics.

Gulla, who works in the traffic division for the King County Police Department’s Federal Way precinct, also won a gold medal in karate at the World Police & Fire Games III, held in June, 1984. He saw many of the same competitors this year.

Gulla grabbed gold this year in the black belt, open class, which was one of the largest divisions in karate.

Troutb

Trout fishing is popular in the Pacific Northwest. The best way to catch fish is to troll slowly so that the bait rises and falls to attract the fish. While that may sound fanatical to the casual angler, if you want to catch more fish, you’ll need to learn the tricks of the trade.

To compensate for the equipment, anglers should be well prepared to do the night fishing. That means buying bait and rigging your fishing line.

Another way to catch fish is to fish with a light, sensitive tip and tackle. That means using a light, sensitive rod coupled with a reel that has a smooth action.

The biggest difference between the South Sound and the rest of the country is the type of set-up you use. The big chinooks are not leader shy and after half-hour of fishing, you’re going to have a leader. The best way to catch fish is to do it slowly so that the bait rises and falls to attract the fish.

Next time is the time to cash in on the day’s catch. You can’t afford to lose fish after an all-night fishing trip. For more information, call REI store at 941-4994.

Nitro blasts its way to U-19 title at invitational

By CHUCK MONHOL

Federal Way's Nitro has struck again.

Tim Duffy's boys' U-19 soccer team, which exploded a state title in March and then went on to place fourth at the Far West Regional in California, captured its first place at the Federal Way Invitational soccer tournament staged at Federal Way Memorial Field.

The Nitro, which competed as a Premier I team last year but went all the way to win the state title after competing against Premier I teams, ousted the Seattle F.C. Wolves, 1-0, in two overtime minutes to take the U-19 division title.

"We had a good weekend," said Duffy. "We only allowed one goal all weekend and that was a strange goal. It was a really good performance.

The Nitro won last spring's state title game over the Highlanders, 2-5, in a sudden-death overtime, and also played 2-2 overtime periods with the game winner to give the Nitro the championship in the Far West Regionals.

The Invitational is used by many teams as a tune-up for the upcoming league season, which begins the first of September.

The Nitro won in first game, 6-4, its second game, 9-0, and its third game, 5-1, over the F.C. Wolves. After winning 10 goals, the semifinal game by a 6-4 margin over the Mid-Valley, the Nitro won its first game in the Far West Regional.

The Wolves were better prepared this time around.

"They did their homework," said Duffy.

Federally, the Nitro, with its attacking style of offense and standard defense that allowed just one goal in five games, proved too much for the Nitro, 1-0, in the face of the percent of the same team he selected in the first place.

"There were a few new players that I'm trying to mold in nicely," he said.

Soccer

The Federal Way Saints, a U-18 team, won the boys' group and took second place in the Tumwater Memorial Field last Saturday, July 23.

The Saints played against the Kent Storm in the finals.

Brandon Yale led all scorers by putting in five goals in the championship game.

Another goal was added by Dan Swanson, the first in an overtime game against the Kent Storm.

Other goals were added by Ben Santos, Erik Nelson, and Dave Parkins. Santos scored in the second half of the game.

Assistant coach Craig Pfister was pleased with his team's overall play.

"We played well overall, but the Kent Storm played well also and we had a few opportunities," he said.

The championship game was the Saints' first win of the season.

The Nitro outscored the Saints with an overall score of 1-0.

On Saturday, July 23, the Federal Way Saints defeated the Kent Storm, 1-0, in the championship game.

The Saints scored in the first half of the game, and the Kent Storm was shut out.

Eags get 'superior' award

The theme for the '89 USA Camp drill team was "Got in to It" and the Federal Way High School drill team certainly did fit, attaining a Superior overall rating.

The competition, held on a campus of PLU before Aug. 14, was a chance for the 27 new Federal Way drill team members to blend their individual talents into a cohesive group. In the months of summer long practices, it was time for the drill team to be exposed to their first evaluative competition and to be judged against the USA Camp standards.

The USA Camp is a unique blend of individual classes and workshops, designed to sharpen individual skills needed to the drill team and to prepare for the USA Camp Show at the State Fair in November. Workshops included classes in: Intermediate dance; dance/drift; novelty and style; prop; and intermediate and advanced jazz.

Each individual girl participated in the three-hour workshops, winning Superior, Excellent and Outstanding ribbons.

"It's an honor to be contributing to the overall rating of the Federal Way High School Drill Team," said Kelli Sashen, drill team captain, "and it was an honor to be among the USA Camp's showstoppers.

As a result, the Federal Way team showed a "Superior" plaque for the combination of points, and a "Superior" ribbon for the USA Camp showroom routine. Individual girls were also awarded with the "Miss Steps" ribbon and a "Superior" medal based on enthusiastic participation and showmanship. In addition, Kelly was acknowledged as the "Miss Step" for first place in the drill down competition. Kelly is eligible to join the USA Dance Hall Team that will be performing at the State Fair at the USA Camp Show games throughout the year.

It is looking like a very worthwhile for the Federal Way High School Drill Team to participate at the USA Camp shows and get the best for our team. The Federal Way half guard team will also be coming to the USA Camp Show, the other girls were contributed to the overall rating.

Sisters fare well

Rander and Rachelle Charlchild from Federal Way each received successful season competing in the summer track progress. Rander and Rachelle each ran the 1,500 meters this year in their first year of competitive track. Rander, 14, made it halfway in the Junior Olympic games (a distance of 1,500 meters) and placed 18th in the finals with a time of 5:15.5 while competing in the 15-and-under division.

Rachelle, 4, also competed in the 10-and-under 1,500 meters this season and placed eighth in the Northwest regional meet. Her best time, which was posted at the Federal Way Invite last year, was 5:09.5.

The two Federal Way girls, who plan to resume running the track program next year, were coached by their father, Craig, who has a background in track and field.

Belknnap earns five gold medals

The Federal Way boys' relay team (formerly of Payzlay) led all local performance at this past weekend's Centennial Games in Spokane by winning five gold medals.

Belknnap was fourth of his team, The Physically Disabled Junior Boys track competition and the other in Junior Men's Road Racing.

Belknapp won the 100-meter track competition with an 11.22 time, and also won the 400 in 1:16.38, the 800 in 2:13.93 and the mile in 4:15.83. He posted a 25.71 time in win to road racing action.

Belknapp's, Jim Martinez was the top medalist and took five silvers. He took the boy's open 100 (10.27), 200 (20.81) and 400 (80.20) and earned silver medals in road racing (80.20) and the mile (5:15.60). Nine Records of Federal Records earned a gold medal in Able bodied men's shot put with a 48-foot 21-inch throw. Federal Way took the gold in the Youth Girls shot put at 34 feet. Another gold medal went to Cathy Kennedy of Federal Way in the women's ball-bouncing.

Eags host jambooree

The Federal Way High School football team will host its own Jamboree on Sept. 1 at 6 p.m., with Sammamish and Ingraham joining the Eagles on the gridiron.

The action will get underway at 6:30 a.m., with games capped the summer slowpitch season for teams in Des Moines-Federal Way King County Parks Department leagues.

The Puyallup area had three gold medal performances in men's shooting. John Houston won the overall pistol competition with a 255 points and Dwight Corvell the pistol sharpshooting action with 210 points. John was awarded first place,attaining a Superior medal in his part, attaining a Superior medal in his part, attaining a Superior medal in his part, attaining a Superior medal in his part, attaining a Superior medal in his part, attaining a Superior medal in his part, and at the Federal Way, took the gold in the Youth Girls shot put at 34 feet. Another gold medal went to Cathy Kennedy of Federal Way in the women's ball-bouncing.

The assignment: go back-to-school looking like a million without spending a fortune. The answer: Pavilion Mall’s 1000-off-price stores. We take 30-40% off regular retail prices every day. You’ll save on name brand clothes, shoes and accessories. And enjoy newly-remodeled Pavilion Mall, too!
HALLOWEEN DECOR for hamster exercisers can be found at most yard sales. This one also offered kids’ games, fishing equipment, household items and more, with prices ranging from a nickel upward.

COREEN KING displays an East Indian carving set she offered for sale recently. Its hand-carved wooden case made it a steal at $5, she said.

Let's make a deal
Weekend bargain hunters revel in search for pre-owned plunder

By LYNN KEEBAUGH
“Will you take 50 cents for this?” the little girl’s mother asked. A pair of anxious 6-year-old eyes scanned the seller’s face for an affirmative response.

“Sure,” said Jane Henderson without hesitation. She was only too happy to cut in half the price of the miniature McDonald’s restaurant. The toy, long-abandoned by her own children, had been taking up space too long enough.

A perfect match, everyone is happy. One gets rid of unwanted or superfluous stuff, another finds something to make the kids happy, outfit a camper or finish a project. The dickering is common, but hardly ever serious. Yard and garage sales are more recreation than serious shopping.

Take Darla King for instance. The mother of three boys ages 2, 6 and 12, she spends most Saturdays prowling Federal Way, seeking treasures in other people’s castoffs.

“I DO this aU the time. I love It. This is the sixth stop today.”

It was not yet 11 a.m. when she hit the Henderson house in Twins Lakes. Mrs. King was proud of a previous week’s bounty which netted 20 pieces of clothing for her youngest for just $15. At the time, she said, she was thinking about clothes before he wears them out, and new clothes are costly.

Shoppers and sellers alike come from all walks. Sales are found in virtually every neighborhood in Federal Way, from Camelot to the Ridge. Those who frequent the sales span even wider ranges, from young mothers to retirees, like Nadine Miskin, who searches for dolls and doll clothes for her doll collection.

The motivation behind yard sales varies, too. The Hendersons decided it was time to clear out some space in their home. The Suviniw family, in another part of Twins Lakes, decided to sell off some of their belongings because they’re moving and the less they have to haul, the better.

CUSTOMERS CAN give their potential bargains a test run at garage and yard sales. Jan Evans tries out an electric broom while her husband Bill looks on. She bought the broom from Coreen King for $10.

Business Notes

Continued from C-1: There's always an art to being a consummate yard-saler. Those who stock the bargain basement will add the antique hutch to a few hours, to a few days, to a few weeks, to a few months. Some even put up their goods in local newspapers, and knock on the door for a viewing or barely on their sale price. There are many antique stores and second-hand dealers, said John Henderson, a veteran of more than a dozen yard-sale adventures.

Darcy Simpontote said she sold 300 worth of goods the night before her sale started, so he found it tough.

There are certain items that always sell, such as furniture that's still in good shape, can keep 'em another 20 years.

The Hendersons said they are amazed at what people will buy. The first thing to go is the yard stuff, followed by patio blocks, tarps, and used-over after a renovation.

Deciding what goes into the sale is easier for items as small as others. Les Henderson said he had to get into a tragic twist in order to sell a kid's bike, so he didn't get along with some things easily, either.

When asked about a John Travolta soundtrack of "Grease," he laughed and said, "It was really hard to put that one out, but he made it fine." The "Grease" soundtrack could probably sell by week's end.

Virus attacks Federal Way gardener's sweet peas

September wedding to join TJ grads

Richard and Morgan Duperre of Federal Way have announced that their daughter, Ruby Ann Puppe, will be married to Thomas Jefferson High School graduate, Eric O. Bennett, in a ceremony to be held in Portland.

The couple's tentative wedding date is August 23rd.
