County pitches expanded service

By KURT HERZOG

City council with firm cost is close to beginning negotiations discussing various options for service, including bidding to provide service that Federal Way currently receives from the county.

Precinct 3 (Federal Way) is currently staffed by 80 patrol officers, five detectives, five traffic officials, one precinct captain, three Juvenile Services officers, two detective sergeants, two detective lieutenants, one Detective, Crime Resistance Education (DARE) officer, one evidence officer and one administrative officer.

On July 20 through Aug. 5, 1990. The Olympic Games will be held in Seattle. One precinct commander, three lieutenants, 11 sergeants, two detective sergeants, three DARE officers, three evidence officers, nine traffic officers, 12 detectives (working outside the city) and 12 juvenile officers.

This is just a starting point, according to King County officials, and far more officers than the city council decided it wanted to pay for.

That's a lot of officers," said Pat Rodgers, Director of Freight Operations.

R. Robert Bertram, president of the Brooklake Veterans Center, said he felt about a foot taller, like a man, when he first donned his Army uniform in World War II. The feeling never went off him, although he never wore it outside the city limits.

Army garb must wear

By MELISSA EYKUGER

The Federal Way News

A SAMPLING OF uniforms from United States history shows the evolution of Army attire, from the bright colors and braid of early years to modern drab, which allows the soldier to blend into his surroundings.

The British uniform, one that would give his troops a sense of his nation, was a mix of blue. The only common denominator was 2 pounds of flour and animal fat handed out to each soldier, to apply to their clothing with insulin or salt. As an animal needs to look fierce, it arranges to look like a man, unlike the American Army. Each colony and the British.

I agree with Bruce Leach's letter "The City of Evergreen would..." in the Sunday, November 12, 1989 issue of the newspaper. The author points out the importance of preserving natural areas and the negative impact of development on the environment. The letter discusses the loss of wetlands and wildlife habitats, and the need for more responsible land use practices. The author also mentions the importance of education and public awareness in promoting a more sustainable future.

City council burning rubber off start line

The Federal Way City Council has been difficult to keep up with, both because of the pace and the figurative pace. On this front, the council has been moving fast, with a fast pace. One of the most high-profile issues of the council was the council's decision to keep the track where they do business.

If the council is moving at breakneck speed, County Council Chairman Bob South is moving at breakneck speed. On this front, the council has been moving at breakneck speed, both literally and figuratively. On this front, the council has been moving at breakneck speed.

Ignored, robber gives up leaves

A lazy bartender ignored a customer’s repeated requests for service. When the man asked for a drink, the bartender told him he was busy and ignored him. The man then decided to leave. When he left, the bartender realized he had made a mistake and rushed after him to apologize. The customer then changed his mind and returned to the bar.

Mobile home foes file court appeal

Residents of a 132-unit mobile home park in the Sky Lake area have decided to file suit to prevent construction of a park office building and a 90-unit addition. The project is being proposed by Reliance United Pacific.

Neighborhoods opposed to the Sunnyside Housing Authority park filed an appeal in King County Superior Court earlier this week. The lawsuit states that there hasn't been significant local opposition to the project, and that the area is already overdeveloped.

The lawsuit also states that King County Councilman Paul Barden, who voted for the project, has a conflict of interest. Barden's mother lives in the Sea-Tac Manor mobile home park, and the Barden family neighborhood since 1965.

In Federal Way, the week in- cludes a tour of the Neighborhood Recycling Center at City Hall. Hours: 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Reservations are required.

City name change on hold

The Federal Way City Council recently moved toward creating a lake in Federal Way, but the council has tabled the name change. However, the council voted Tuesday to wait until it had reviewed creating the task force with its recently hired legal counsel. Because of other matters the council members were busy with, it may be a while before the council does anything else.

A group of residents presented a petition with 104 signatures to the council last month asking that the name change be put on a ballot in November. According to state law, the council must wait at least six months before putting the measure on the ballot.

Anti-cruising law heard

The King County Council will hear tomorrow the first reading of an ordinance that would designate the hot-zoned area to prevent cruising and waste on the streets and sidewalks. The county's policy has been to make no immediate changes in the meantime, the Christmas moratorium.

The moratorium was imposed to give the new council a chance to review land-use plans in Federal Way. It will be in place for an unlimited amount of time.

Suzuki site sold, but new business stalled

Suzuki shop could become a business park. However, before the business park can be developed, another conflict of interest must be resolved. Whether the name of the new business has been proposed by Reliance United Pacific.

The county is requiring that an environmental impact statement (EIS) be prepared for the project. The EIS must be developed, hence increasing the value of the land owned by Barden's wife, opponents say.

Barden denied any conflict of interest at a King County Council hearing on Oct. 30. "I have absolutely no interest in Conservation Manor," Barden said. "In no way will I benefit from this council's action."

A writ of certiori, or review hearing, will be held in King County Presiding Court at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 11. In the event it is decided that the council failed to take the appropriate steps, neighbors will appeal to the state Supreme Court. The lawsuit will go to the council for a hearing on Oct. 30.

Land Use Notices

No EIS required for parking lot

King County officials have decided to approve the existing parking lot in 132-space lot of the Federal Way Towne Center. The proposed lot will cover 1.4 acres in the manufacturing park.

The project is being proposed by Reliance United Pacific.

The county's decision not to require an EIS for the parking lot is due to the fact that the project is not a commercial activity. The parking lot will not be used to develop, hence increasing the value of the land owned by Barden's mother, opponents say.

The lawsuit also states that King County Councilman Paul Barden, who voted for the project, has a conflict of interest. Barden's mother lives in the Sea-Tac Manor mobile home park, and the Barden family neighborhood since 1965.

World War II veteran William Dohrn's story of tiring and non-judgmental. Because of his sense from Loveland, Colo., I didn't wolf down my trip in northern Minnesota when he woke me up, but I had stolen my feet packs.

But while he was gentle, he was also quite memorable. My Uncle Willie is in the service since that seemed to offer less risk to me.

My Uncle Willie is a modest man, but he does have a heart, the genius what being a veteran meant to him. He was a great man. He is having landing capacity problems. Trees don't have to be cut when you're dealing with the military powers.

Eventually, the computers will keep track of permits. Otherwise, they would not be able to tie in to the precinct computer. "By now you know the immediate result. The laptop, dispatchers, or another precinct will help tell you plenty of men died and were wounded up, dodged enemy shelling and rifle fire. Historians might say the war was about aviation. I'm his only one and for the worldly experience that helped mature my view of manlund," he writes.

Eagles take SPSL meet

By Tim Clinton

The Federal Way girls’ soccer team is the only one left standing in the SPSL. The Eagles have won both of their division matches, and they’re the division leaders. Federal Way head coach Bill Christiansen was looking for a No. 1 seed in the league, and he got it with a 2-0 final score. The Eagles were able to get past Kentridge, 1-0, in a tough battle on Wednesday.

"That gives us a perfect 10," Christiansen said. "We’ve worked very hard to get to state, and we’re excited to be there." The Eagles are now one step closer to the state championship.

In the Sound Division, division champion Decatur was awarded the first-place trophy thanks to an earlier qualifying meet. The Raiders in the diving competition.

"We had a great team," said Neil, "and we’re excited to be at state. We went further and did a lot better in the finals." The All-South Puget Sound Division first team while three first-team picks.

For Federal Way, freshman midfielder Joli March was a Sound Division second-team choice along with sophomore defender Charity Mitchell on the Sound Division first team.

"We had a great season," said Neil, "but it sure stinks that other kids who are竞争力 were not invited to state. My team was the best in the state, and we deserve to be at state. That was unfair that a team could finish lower than ours in the standings and still not be invited to state." The Eagles were 13-1-0 in league play.

We haven't heard much lately about actress Zac Efron. He's keeping a low profile these days. What's going on?

Q: G.S.

A: Zac is currently in the middle of shooting a new movie, “In Darkness,” and has been spending a lot of time in rehearsals and on-set. He's also been busy with various interviews and promotional events for his upcoming projects. Zac Efron is a dedicated actor, and he's putting his focus on his craft in this new film. He's been working hard to perfect his performance and bring the character to life on screen. So, it looks like Zac is keeping a busy schedule, which is why we haven't seen much of him lately. If you're interested in his upcoming projects, I suggest checking out the latest news on his social media accounts or the official website for the production company involved in the film.
